The traffic signal system about to be placed in service in downtown Boston is known as Unit 1. This includes Washington street, from Broadway to Haymarket square; Cambridge street, and Tremont street, from Staniford street to Broadway; Boylston street, from Tremont street to Arlington street, and Summer street, from Washington street to Arch street. This system is what is known as a flexible progressive system. In such a system the lights do not turn on all green or all red at one time, but the time is arranged so that a vehicle proceeding on Washington street, for instance, will meet a green light at each intersection if it moves at a certain rate of speed. The rate of speed in Unit 1 has been tentatively set at seventeen miles per hour. Various tests will be made during the first few weeks that the signals are operating to determine which is the most efficient speed for this system. It may eventually be set slightly lower or slightly higher than seventeen miles per hour.

At each intersection a period has been set aside for pedestrians. Pedestrians will have the exclusive use of the intersection when the red and yellow lights are showing at the same time.

There are forty-one intersections in Unit 1. All intersections except one have two periods for vehicles. When a green light is showing on one street a red light is showing on the intersecting street. Just before the lights are about to change a yellow light will show with the green light, which will be a warning period. When this yellow light comes on, operators of vehicles moving on that street must stop if it is possible to do so without jamming on their brakes.

The intersection of Arlington street and Boylston street has three periods of vehicular traffic. Boylston street has one period and each side of Arlington street has a separate period because of the heavy left turn from Arlington street into Boylston street eastbound. The sequence of colors is the same at this intersection as at all other intersections.

At some of the intersections in Unit 1 there are peculiar conditions or peculiar movements of traffic which require the particular attention of the officer at that intersection. The following is a list of these intersections and recommended methods of handling these peculiar situations:

Washington Street, Stuart Street and Kneeland Street.—The left turn from Stuart street into Washington street runs with Washington street traffic. There is a left arrow in the signal facing Stuart street. The officer at this intersection should see that this left turn does not run when Kneeland street and Stuart street straight are running.

Washington Street, Summer Street and Winter Street.—The right turn from Washington street into Summer street runs when Summer street is running. The officer at this intersection should keep this right turn moving at all times, except during the pedestrian period.

Washington Street, Franklin Street and Bromfield Street.—The right turn from Washington street into Franklin street runs when Franklin street is running. The officer should keep this line moving at all times except during the pedestrian period.

Adams Square.—Washington street northbound, Cornhill and Dock square run together. Washington street southbound and the right turn from Dock square into Washington street run together. The officer should keep this right turn moving at all times except during the pedestrian period. It is expected that vehicles moving from Dock square into Brattle street will have passed through Adams square before the vehicles moving from Washington street and Cornhill have reached the intersection of Dock square and Adams square. During the rush hours the officer should see that Washington street northbound and Cornhill traffic are given the preference over the traffic moving from Dock square into Brattle street.

Washington Street, Hanover Street and Friend Street.—Friend street traffic moves with Washington street. The officer should see that the left turn from Friend street into Hanover street does not interfere with Washington street traffic.

Haymarket Square.—Washington street northbound, Union street and Sudbury street run together. Blackstone street, Cross street and Canal street run together. In the first period vehicles moving from Sudbury street into Union street and Blackstone street cross the Washington street northbound traffic. The officer should see that this movement from Sudbury street does not interfere with the Washington street and Union street traffic.

Tremont Street and Broadway.—There is a special signal for the street cars leaving the subway. These street cars move with the Tremont street traffic. The officer at this intersection should see that the street cars do not interfere with the Tremont street traffic.

Tremont Street, Warrenton Street and Shawmut Avenue.—Shawmut avenue and Tremont street southbound run together; Warrenton street and Tremont street northbound run together. There should be no conflict of traffic at this intersection except perhaps during the theater hours when the officer assigned here should see that the Warrenton street traffic does not interfere with the Tremont street traffic.

Tremont Street and Stuart Street.—During certain periods, especially during theater hours, the left turns at this intersection become unusually heavy. The officer assigned here should see that the left turns do not interfere with the straight movement of traffic.

Tremont Street and La Grange Street.—Tremont street southbound traffic moves continuously except during the pedestrian period. La Grange street traffic runs with Tremont street southbound traffic. The officer at this intersection should see that Tremont street southbound traffic keeps moving and the La Grange street left turn does not interfere with Tremont street southbound traffic.

Tremont Street and Boylston Street.—There is a right arrow in the signal facing Tremont street southbound traffic. The officer at this intersection should see that the right turn from Tremont street into Boylston street westbound is kept moving at all times except during the pedestrian period. This right turn lane must be kept open at all times.

Tremont Street and Avery Street.—Tremont street southbound traffic moves continuously except during the pedestrian period. Avery street traffic runs with Tremont street southbound. The officer at this intersection should see that Tremont street southbound traffic keeps moving and that the Avery street left-turn traffic does not interfere with the Tremont street southbound traffic.

Tremont Street and West Street.—Tremont street southbound traffic moves continuously except during the pedestrian period. The left turn from West street into Tremont street moves with the Tremont street southbound traffic. The officer at this intersection should see that the left-turn traffic from West street does not interfere with the Tremont street southbound traffic.

Tremont Street and Temple Place.—Tremont street southbound runs continuously except during the pedestrian period. Tremont street northbound traffic runs only part of the time. There is a heavy left turn from Tremont street into Temple place which should run when Tremont street northbound is not running. The officer at this intersection should see that the left turn from Tremont street into Temple place runs only when Tremont street northbound is not running.

Tremont Street and Winter Street.—Tremont street southbound traffic runs continuously except during the pedestrian period. Winter street runs while Tremont street southbound traffic is running. The officer at this intersection should see that the left turn from Winter street does not interfere with the Tremont street southbound traffic.

Tremont Street and Park Street.—The signal facing Tremont street southbound traffic has an arrow to keep the right turn moving into Park street. The officer at this intersection should see that no left turn is made from Tremont street into Park street and that the right turn from Tremont street into Park street is kept moving at all times except during the pedestrian period.

Tremont Street and Bromfield Street.—Tremont street southbound traffic keeps moving at all times except during the pedestrian period. Bromfield street runs while Tremont street southbound is running. The officer at this intersection should see that the left turn from Bromfield street into Tremont street does not interfere with the Tremont street southbound traffic.

Tremont Street, School Street and Beacon Street.—Tremont street northbound and Tremont street southbound run during one period and Beacon street runs during the other period. There is a heavy left turn from Tremont street southbound into School street. The officer at this intersection should see that the left turn from Tremont street into School street does not interfere with the Tremont street northbound traffic. There should be sufficient time to run this left turn before the Tremont street northbound traffic starts.

Scollay Square at Pemberton Square.—Tremont street northbound and Scollay square southbound run together. Court street to Pemberton square and Court street to Scollay square run together. The signal facing Scollay square southbound traffic has a left arrow. The left turn from Scollay square into Cornhill is unusually heavy. Tremont street northbound traffic should move immediately when the green light shows and the left turn from Scollay square into Cornhill should move so far as possible after the Tremont street traffic has passed. The officer at this intersection should see that the left turn from Scollay square into Cornhill does not interfere with the Tremont street northbound traffic.

Scollay Square at Hanover Street and Sudbury Street.—Scollay square northbound and the left turn from Cambridge street into Sudbury street runs during one period. Sudbury street, Scollay square southbound and Hanover street run during one period. There is no signal controlling Howard street traffic. The signal in the island at Sudbury street facing Cambridge street is only for left-turn traffic from Cambridge street into Sudbury street. This signal does not control traffic moving from Cambridge street into Scollay square. The officer at this intersection should see that the left turn from Hanover street into Scollay square does not interfere with the left turn from Scollay square into Hanover street. It is expected that the traffic from Sudbury street into Scollay square will not interfere with the traffic moving from Hanover street into Cambridge street but will clear the intersection of Sudbury street and Cambridge street before the traffic from Hanover street reaches this point.

Bowdoin Square.—Cambridge street northbound to Cambridge street, to Green street and to Chardon street runs during one period. Chardon street and a left turn from Cambridge street into Green street and into Chardon street run during the other period. The signal in the island is only for the left turn and does not control the Cambridge street southbound traffic moving straight on Cambridge street.

Boylston Street and Arlington Street.—The signal facing Boylston street westbound traffic has a right arrow. The officer at this intersection should see that the right turn from Boylston street into Arlington street northbound is kept moving at all times except during the pedestrian period. During the morning rush period it is absolutely necessary that three lines of traffic move southbound on Arlington street. The officer at this intersection should see that no cars are parked in the west side of Arlington street and that the moving vehicles use the three lines. He should also see that this traffic moves immediately when the green light is showing.

Summer Street and Hawley Street.—Summer street eastbound traffic runs continuously except during the pedestrian period. The officer at this intersection should see that the left turn from Hawley street into Summer street does not interfere with the Summer street eastbound traffic.

Shawmut Avenue and Broadway.—The street cars leaving the subway at this intersection move with Broadway traffic.

The following intersections are not included within the Unit 1 area but are so closely connected with the signal lights that the following recommendations are made:

Boylston Street and Berkeley Street.—The officer at this intersection should work with the lights at the intersection of Boylston street and Arlington street. If this officer will keep the traffic moving as it reaches him from Arlington street there will be no congestion in the block between Arlington street and Berkeley street.

State Street and Devonshire Street.—The officer at this intersection should work with the signal at the intersection of State street and Washington street since the time allowed to State street at Washington street will be much less than at present. It will be necessary for him to acquaint himself with the shorter periods. There will be smaller amounts of traffic reaching him from Adams square which will mean that he will run many more periods with the lights than without the lights by less vehicles going through during each period. There should be no occasion for the traffic on Devonshire street between Adams square and State street becoming so congested as to block Adams square.

Devonshire Street and Water Street.—The officer at this intersection should take the traffic from Washington street as it arrives at the intersection. He will find that less vehicles are arriving in each period and will have many more periods than at present both from Washington street through Water street and from State street through Devonshire street.

Broadway and Harrison Avenue.—The officer at this intersection should take the traffic from Washington street as it reaches him. This will mean shorter and more periods at this intersection.

The following is a list of locations where peculiar conditions require special attention:

Tremont Street, from Scollay square to Park street:

The proper functioning of the signal system depends upon moving two lines of vehicles southbound on Tremont street in this area. Enforcement of the parking restrictions in this area must be accomplished if the signals are to operate properly.

Devonshire Street, from State street to Water street:

It is most desirable that the parking rules be enforced in this area.

Winter Street, from Washington street to Tremont street:

The signal system has been set up so that a car may move through Summer street and Winter street to Tremont street at a speed of fifteen miles an hour without stopping. When the vehicle reaches Tremont street there will be a green light showing, if the vehicle has moved at the fixed rate of speed. Any congestion in Winter street caused by vehicles backing in and out of alleys or by parked cars at the curbs might cause a blockade at the intersection of Washington street, Summer street and Winter street. It is especially desirable that vehicles back in and out of alleyways in this street when traffic is not moving through from Summer street. It is also essential that the parking rules be enforced in this area.

Beacon Street, from Park street to Tremont street:

This is a main route to downtown Boston. The volume of traffic is very heavy at all times and especially during the morning rush hours. Vehicles will enter the system at the intersection of Beacon street and Park street where the officer should see that there are three lines of vehicles standing in Beacon street. There is ample room for the three lines to continue through Beacon street to Tremont street if the parking restrictions are enforced in this area. Particular attention should be paid to the enforcement of the parking rules in this street especially during the morning rush hour.

Boylston Street, from Arlington street to Clarendon street:

Vehicles stopping in this area are addicted to the practice of double-line parking. With street cars operating through this street, double parking precludes any movement of vehicles. The parking rules in this area should be strictly enforced.

Arlington Street, from Commonwealth avenue to Boylston street:

There is considerable congestion in this area caused by double-line parking and by taxicabs standing in the roadway waiting to reach the curb at the Hotel Ritz-Carlton. It is necessary to move three lines of vehicles in Arlington street entering Boylston street. This will necessitate the strict enforcement of parking rules in this street.

Scollay Square:

The escalator in Scollay square makes a bottle-neck through which the southbound traffic must move. It is important that the parking prohibitions at this location be strictly enforced.

Washington Street, from Water street to State street:

The situation here is comparable to the situation in Beacon street, between Park street and Tremont street. Three lines of vehicles approach this area and the parking of vehicles usually restricts the movement to one line. Particular attention should be paid to the enforcement of parking prohibitions in this area.

All of the connecting streets between Washington street and Tremont street should be cleared of parked cars where there are parking prohibitions. Any serious congestion in any of these streets will result in blocking Washington street and Tremont street, thereby interfering with the through movement of traffic on the latter two streets.

The signal system has been set up to favor the through movement of traffic in Washington street and Tremont street. A through movement has also been arranged through Boylston street, through Summer street and Winter street, and through Beacon street and School street. These movements should be favored so that vehicles will continue on these routes without stopping. It is recommended that the officers at each intersection become acquainted with the length of time given to each street and particularly to the pedestrians. During the rush periods the officers could assist by lining up vehicles and seeing that vehicles get started when the green light appears. Particular attention should be paid to pedestrians who should be warned just before the end of the pedestrian period. Many of the signals are exclusively for pedestrians and do not face vehicular traffic. Where vehicles are stopped at an intersection they should stop at the stop line.

Except in cases where it is necessary to relieve congestion, officers should not stand within the intersection in the roadway. Experience has been that motorists will not observe signal lights while the police officer is standing in the roadway. Police officers should be on the sidewalk near the intersection so that their services are available if needed. The greatest assistance that can be rendered by an officer assigned to an intersection is to keep the vehicles lined up properly and to prevent parking where congestion will result.

Officers should not force the traffic.

At no time should an officer move vehicles against a red light, no matter how serious the congestion may be at any location. The system will clear itself if vehicles will move only when a green light is showing. Too much stress cannot be laid upon this statement. Do not move vehicles against a red light except to clear an intersection. If a vehicle has slid over the stop line when the green and yellow lights are showing and stops within the intersection because the red light has shown, this vehicle should immediately be moved out of the intersection.

At the bottom of the right side of each control box at each intersection there is located a key switch which turns off the lights at that intersection. Every police officer will have a key for these switches. If the lights will not function properly, the officer will turn this switch, shutting off the lights and will immediately notify a police station from the nearest box asking that the traffic commission shop be notified at Highlands 3862. Under no consideration will a police officer open the door of the signal box.

The signals should not be turned off unless they are not operating sufficiently efficient to move the traffic at the intersection. If one light is out it will probably mean that the lamp has burned out. This will not occasion shutting down the signal. It will only be necessary to report to the Traffic Commission and a man will be on duty who can reach any part of the system within a short time.

These instructions are intended to cover only the important features of the operation and maintenance of the signal system. Various questions and various unforeseen circumstances will arise which will require later instructions.

BOSTON TRAFFIC COMMISSION,

154 BERKELEY STREET, July 19, 1930.

HON. EUGENE C. HULTMAN, Police Commissioner, 154 Berkeley Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. COMMISSIONER,—In connection with the list of suggestions and advice to the officers regarding cooperation with the Unit 1 signals, Mr. Hurley wishes to add the following paragraph:

At the intersection of Washington street, Boylston street and Essex street, there is a signal located at the northeast corner of Washington street and Essex street, which signal is only for Washington street and Essex street traffic. It is possible that operators of vehicles making the left turn from Boylston street into Washington street may think that this signal is to direct them and will stop in Washington street. The officer at this intersection should see that Boylston street traffic is not directed by this signal which is for Washington street traffic.

Assuring you of my kindest regards,
I am,

Yours very truly,

JOSEPH A. CONRY,
Commissioner.

IV. FIRE HOSE PONTON.

The fire at the L Street Bridge, June 6, 1930, demonstrated that when the tide was high that it was impossible for the rail guns on the fireboats to be directed so that the stream would hit the fire, because the rail guns were considerably higher than the side timbers of the bridge. It was also clearly shown that the "Pup Boat," which is carried on the fireboats, if operated under bridges, was inadequate to cope with the situation because of its limited capacity and also because the men operating same were subjected to severe exposure from smoke and heat.

This condition was noted by Hoseman Arthur J. Landry, a member of Fireboat Engine 47, who was on duty at this fire, and he immediately set out to see if some sort of equipment could be devised which would be able to handle heavy fire streams under bridges and docks where small headroom existed and which could be operated by men at a considerable distance from the point where the stream is to be applied. After giving considerable thought to this matter, Hoseman Landry devised an appliance which he has termed a "Fire Hose Pontoon." He submitted a plan of his pontoon which showed that it had considerable merit and one was constructed at the Maintenance Department for the purpose of a test.

A test was held July 8, 1930, at the quarters of Engine Company 31, which showed that the pontoon was able to operate under a fire on a bridge using various types of nozzles, the water being supplied from the fireboat with a 2½-inch hose. The pontoon was operated by means of an extension handle at a distance of 20 feet from the boat and it was clearly demonstrated that if additional sections of the handle were used, it could be operated at a distance of 35 or 40 feet from the boat.

The appliance consists of a cylindrical pontoon 3½ feet in diameter and made of galvanized sheet iron. It is about 18 inches in height. On top of the pontoon there is secured a 2½-inch elbow with a female connection on the lower end for receiving the 2½-inch line. The upper end of the elbow has a 2½-inch male hose thread to receive the various types of nozzles which might be required. Attached to the pontoon is an adjustable pole or handle made of square steel tubing and so constructed that it may be extended in sections of 5 feet each to a total length of 40 feet. The weight of the hose leading to the nozzle on the pontoon is carried on this handle by means of chain loops and the handle has an additional purpose of being used to push the pontoon under a dock and to control its movements during the operation on a fire.

Because of the ingenuity and interest displayed by Hoseman Landry in the development of this pontoon and because of the great service it will render to the citizens of Boston in the future, Hoseman Landry is hereby commended by the Fire Commissioner and is granted seven (7) days additional vacation.

By order of Fire Commissioner EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY A. Fox,
Chief of Department.

*General Order No. 68.I. MOVEMENT OF FIRE APPARATUS.

Until further orders, the following procedure must be observed in the movement of fire apparatus in responding to and from fires, at street intersections where traffic signal lights are located.

Chauffeurs of fire apparatus must conform to the regulations governing the operation of signal lights the same as any motor vehicle, which means that if the red light is set against them, they will come to a complete stop until the light changes, or at a crossing where a traffic officer is stationed, they receive a positive signal to go ahead from said officer.

It is also possible for a traffic officer, provided he observes the approach of fire apparatus some little distance away, to control cross traffic which would otherwise impede the movement of fire apparatus, by means of the box on the signal pole.

All due care and caution must be exercised by department chauffeurs to avoid damage to vehicles and injury or loss of life to persons.

II. FIRE DEPARTMENT BAND.

The next rehearsal of the Fire Department Band will be held at 2 p. m., Friday, July 25, 1930, at East Armory, East Newton street, between Harrison avenue and Albany street. All members will report promptly at the hour mentioned.

III. COMMENDATIONS.

Ladderman Archibald W. McInnes of Ladder Company 28 is hereby commended for extinguishing a fire in an automobile on Caton street, Mattapan, June 28, 1930, while off duty.

The Fire Commissioner is pleased to publish the following letter from Hon. Frederick E. Judd, Senator from the Berkshire, Hampshire and Hampden District:

108 MYRTLE STREET,
BOSTON, July 18, 1930.

HON. EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN, Fire Commissioner, Boston, Mass.

DEAR COMMISSIONER McLAUGHLIN,—It has been my intention to write you long before this to express my great appreciation of the splendid work done by the Boston Fire Department during the fire at 108 Myrtle street, on May 27. Pressure of business and absence from the city have, however, prevented my writing before.

I rent the apartment on the second floor of this block, and on the morning of the above date we were in a serious predicament, as the hall was filled with flame and smoke and our escape cut off from that direction. Other families above us went out over the roofs. Our family consists of myself, wife and the latter's mother, eighty-nine years of age, so you can imagine our gratitude for the prompt and efficient manner in which your department worked. The fire was in the suite below us, and would have swept the block except for the good work of firemen. There are no words strong enough for me to use in commendation. Anything I can do for your men at any time will be a pleasure. The city is to be congratulated on such a force.

Sincerely yours,

FREDERICK E. JUDD,
Senator, Berkshire, Hampshire and Hampden District.

By order of Fire Commissioner EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY A. FOX,
Chief of Department.

AIRPORTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The number of airports in the country continues to grow steadily, and the listing compiled by the Department of Commerce showed 1,520 airports in operation on October 2 of this year. Of these, 442 were municipal airports, and 468 were privately owned and operated. The rest included army fields, naval air stations, Department of Commerce intermediate fields, marked auxiliary fields and miscellaneous others. As will be noted, the municipal airports comprise 29 per cent of the total number now in use in the country. The fact that 442 cities of various sizes have indicated their interest by investing substantial funds in the purchase of property and construction of these airports illustrates the stability of aviation today. As indicative of the volume of traffic already in evidence at municipal airports, it might be noted that in a recent representative week the Des Moines airport showed 88 airplanes arriving and 86 leaving. Oakland, California, showed 55 arriving, 52 leaving; while the Tulsa, Oklahoma, airport showed 272 arriving and 265 leaving. These figures are constantly increasing, and they show that the city airport is already being used.

PORT OF BOSTON.

Boston Harbor comprises an area of about 47 square miles (exclusive of the islands), including all the expanse of tidewater within a straight line from Point Allerton to Point Shirley and extending therefrom to the mainland. It is the best of natural harbors, near open sea, sheltered and spacious for anchorage; main ship channel 35 feet in depth at mean low water, increasing to 40 feet from President Roads to open sea; new dredging operations in charge of United States engineers are under way for increasing depth of said main channel to 40 feet; waterfront (i. e., lineal pier space) 40 miles, 6 miles fronting on 30 feet depth at low water.

Commonwealth Pier No. 5, South Boston, 1,200 feet long, 400 feet wide, accommodating five 600-foot ships at one time, 40 feet depth at mean low water on both sides, with three 2-story fireproof buildings of steel and concrete construction, containing 900,000 square feet of floor space, total cost of this enterprise to State, $4,500,000. Commonwealth Pier No. 6, South Boston (Fish Pier), buildings on same erected by lessee, Boston Fish Market Corporation, cost to State, $1,487,361. Commonwealth Pier, No. 1, East Boston, 900 feet long, costing State $764,600 for site and $426,674 for construction. New dry dock at South Boston (probably the largest in world), completed in 1919, 1,200 feet long and 120 wide, costing $3,169,651 and taken by United States Government at total cost.

Islands in Boston Harbor over 3 acres in area, 17, with total area of 965 acres; Long Island the largest, or 215.5 acres. Owned by United States, 392 acres; by City of Boston, 334 acres. Number of wharves, 143, of which eight are owned by the city.

There are 38 foreign steamship lines with regular sailings to and from Boston, ten coastwise lines and three intercoastal. In 1915 a revision of the harbor lines was made and the project undertaken whereby 600 acres of flats between Governor's Island and Jeffries Pt. will be filled in and used for extensive commercial developments under State control. About 175 acres of flats have recently been filled in and added to the land area of East Boston and 160 acres to that of South Boston.

In April, 1918, the Government decided to establish its Army Supply Base on a portion of the Commonwealth lands in South Boston. About 57.6 acres were purchased of the State, the price being $1,317,510, soon followed by the construction of two pier sheds, each 920 feet long, a wharf shed and other buildings, including one of the largest storehouses in the world, built of reinforced concrete, eight stories high, 1,638 feet long, 126 feet wide and with floor space of over 1,650,000 square feet. The total outlay for the plant was $26,000,000.

Total expenditure by State for improvement of Boston Harbor $22,575,827 from 1859 to November 30, 1927, inclusive; in the same period, there was expended additionally $951,992 on small channels; total Federal expenditure from 1790 to June 30, 1927, $13,258,846.

FLAG DAYS.

By order of the City Council it is the duty of the City Messenger to have the national colors displayed upon the public flagstaffs on the following days:

Franklin's Birthday, January 17; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Evacuation Day, March 17; Patriot's Day, April 19; Grant's Birthday, April 27; Memorial Day, May 30; Anniversary of Adoption of National Colors, June 14; Bunker Hill Day, June 17; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, September (first Monday); Anniversary of Foudning of Boston, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Armistice Day, November 11.

THE COST OF DIPHTHERIA.

Diphtheria costs New York City over $5,000,000 annually, according to Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York, whose statement, given in a news release from the department, is based on the calculations of the value of the lives lost, the cost of hospital care, and the expense of caring for patients in their homes.

Last year the loss occasioned by diphtheria in New York City was as follows:

Value of 642 human lives lost.....	$4,575,000
Cost of hospital care for 2,976 cases in the Contagious Disease Hospitals.....	391,000
Cost of caring for 7,800 cases in private homes.....	273,000
	$5,139,000

As against an annual economic loss of over $5,000,000 a year it is stated that an expenditure of less than 10 per cent of this sum will suffice to wipe out diphtheria and thus save the community $4,500,000 annually.

Figures by the New York City Department of Health show that thus far this year over 25,000 children have been immunized against diphtheria, nearly 12,000 having been protected by private physicians. The growing interest on the part of parents is well shown in the steady increase in the number of children immunized, which increased from 555 in the first week of the present campaign to 4,702 during the first week in April, or almost ninefold.

MUNICIPALITY TAKES OVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AIRPORT.

Oklahoma City has voted $425,000 in bonds for the enlargement and improvement of its municipal airport. The Aviation Committee of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce has operated the airport for the past four years and was largely instrumental in putting over the bond-issue campaign. The port will in the future be operated by the city as a strictly municipal project.

When completed, the new field will comprise 360 acres and will meet all of the qualifications for an A 1A airport as set forth by the United States Department of Commerce.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS REDUCE BALTIMORE TRAFFIC TOLL.

An analysis of traffic accidents at street intersections in Baltimore indicates that the automatic traffic signal is proving very effective in reducing the number of such accidents.

There were 419 traffic accidents at all intersections covered in the report issued by the Baltimore Safety Council for the first six months of 1927, before the signals were installed. In direct contrast, only 259 such accidents were recorded for the first six months of this year, with the signals in operation.

The casualties were: one person killed and 129 injured before the installation of the signals, as compared with two killed but only 92 injured after. A reduction in the number of accidents was reported at thirty-two intersections, following the installation of the signals, while seventeen other intersections have shown little or no change as yet, and ten actually have experienced an increase since the use of the signals.

THROUGH TRAFFIC STREETS.

Many a city government, confronted almost unawares by the ever-increasing traffic problem, has seized upon the "through street" idea as the least expensive sop to those who clamor for something to relieve the distress. This situation is reflected in many city traffic ordinances which give absolute right-of-way to vehicles on any of the "arterial highways" included in a long list, and which fail entirely to provide for stop requirements, signs, enforcement facilities, or public education. Unfortunately, traffic regulation is not so simple. It cannot be successfully accomplished by merely designating certain through streets.

Still, through streets are useful. Their successful application depends only on an understanding of what can and what cannot be expected of them, and on a realization of where they fit into the traffic control picture. Consider a street as it develops with the increasing traffic from a minor highway to a heavily traveled main thoroughfare. Traffic control will logically develop in successive steps something like these:

1. No control at all.
2. Slow or stop signs at isolated intersections.
3. Through streets with stop signs at every intersection.
4. Occasional automatic signals introduced where there is heavy cross traffic.
5. Complete flexible progressive signal control.
6. Grade separation at important intersecting streets.
7. Elevated or depressed roadway without intersecting streets.

OFFICIAL CHRONICLE OF BOSTON MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

VOL. 22.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 2, 1930.

No. 31

MAYOR CURLEY'S ACQUISITION OF GOVERNOR'S ISLAND AND AIRPORT IMPROVEMENTS ON IT WILL GIVE BOSTON GREATEST COMMERCIAL AIR TERMINAL IN WORLD—A LASTING MONUMENT TO HIS MAYORALTY ADMINISTRATIONS—VISION OF MAYOR IN FIRST ADMINISTRATION NOW ACHIEVED.

BOSTON AIRPORT AND RELATION TO GOVERNOR'S ISLAND WHERE MAYOR CURLEY PLANS DIRIGIBLE HANGAR AND MOORING MAST AFTER FILLING IN FLATS ADJACENT.

When Boston has fully acquired possession of the land at Governor's Island and the work of leveling and filling about it has been completed Boston will have in prospect and near to completion one of the greatest air terminals in the entire world. To Mayor James M. Curley will have gone the honor of accomplishing this for the City of Boston.

Mayor Curley has been working with indefatigable zeal for the completion of this work as one of the crowning achievements of his association with Boston in an administrative way. With this completed, a mooring mast for anchoring dirigibles and the completion of the vehicular tunnel to East Boston, this city will take its place as a world center of commercial aviation second to none. The completion of the work will be the most outstanding, as well as one of the most lasting monuments to Mayor Curley's administrations. On the island also will be a dirigible hangar.

That the City of Boston has been able to secure the release of the island from the United States Government to the City of Boston has been due solely to the hard work and the untiring effort of Mayor Curley, climaxed by the visit and personal interview with President Hoover early in the summer. The passing of the necessary titles is all that remains to be effected before Boston will be launched on this master undertaking in aviation.

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT.

That the Mayor was able to accomplish this was due to the fact that he presented to President Hoover and the Washington authorities irrefutable arguments in favor of surrendering the island and also the future greatness of Boston as an aviation port, both for commerce and defense in times of war. Boston is almost the only city with its airport within two miles of the city's center. Most other airports are ten miles or more from the center. The Boston Airport also is fortunately located for both sea and land planes. Likewise it has the advantage of being at the terminals of both rail and steamship lines.

Not alone will it be commercially possible to import and export goods from the Boston Airport with ease and facility not possible anywhere else in the country or the world, but airplanes themselves can be loaded from the port to ships without further transportation, ocean ships being able to anchor at the dock of the airport.

A history of the growth and final accomplishment of the purpose of Mayor Curley is ably set forth in the report of Chairman William P. Long of the Park Department. The report reads:

HIGH LIGHTS IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF BOSTON'S AIRPORT.

The Boston Airport was officially dedicated and opened for use on September 8, 1923. It was probably one of the first airports in this country to be officially designated as such. Prior to this time landing spaces for airplanes, in accordance with army practice, had been designated as "aerodromes" or "flying fields." The early pioneers, the war-time flyers, who had visions of the great commercial use of airplanes, were well justified in this appellation which is now universally used throughout the country.

EARLY HISTORY AND CONTROL.

In the years following the war an association known as the Aero Club of Massachusetts was organized to maintain and stimulate interest in aviation. The only plot of ground readily available at that time for the use of airplanes was the old Muster Field located at Framingham, some fifteen miles from Boston. In order, therefore, to be able to carry out their plans it became necessary to secure in or near Boston a sight available for aviation uses. Many such sites were considered and rejected and finally there was selected the newly filled mud flats lying adjacent to the Jeffries Point section of East Boston. That this site was not only a logical one, but a site well adapted for flying purposes and well suited as regards easy access to the city, has been very amply demonstrated from every point of view, as will be seen from the description of developments which have taken place since.

The United States Army Air Corps was at the time looking for an available site for military purposes. A group of war-time pilots was imbued with the idea of organizing a National Guard Air Squadron. The Boston Chamber of Commerce became interested in the proposition and to its great credit actively sponsored the acquisition of the land in question which was owned by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The Commonwealth had just previously acquired the land by right of eminent domain and had converted it from mud flats to land by means of dredging operations, the dredging being necessary for the improvement of the harbor. To E. A. Terhune, a war-time navy pilot, goes the credit of having first suggested this site, which was finally selected from among many others.

In June, 1922, after much active opposition, and through the combined efforts of those interested in aviation, including the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Massachusetts Legislature passed an act permitting the use of this land by the United States Army and the Massachusetts National Guard. It set aside an appropriation of $35,000 for grading and surfacing the land and for the erection of hangars. It was found that approximately $50,000 would be necessary to properly complete the initial project and the additional $15,000 was soon raised through the efforts of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the Aero Club of Massachusetts, and the sponsors of the National Guard Aero Squadron.

A provision of vital importance was written into the lease which provided that, while the land was leased to the United States Army for aviation purposes, its free use should be allowed, under suitable regulations, by commercial flyers. Outside of the actual conversion of the land to aviation purposes, this was certainly the most important and far-sighted provision that was made at this time. The subsequent growth of commercial aviation has far exceeded any ideas on the subject that were held by the sponsors of the Boston Airport.

DEDICATION AND FIRST FLIGHTS AT THE BOSTON AIRPORT.

Lieut. Curtiss Moffat, of the United States Army Air Corps, the first army flyer to land on the site, which is now fast becoming one of the greatest air terminals in the country, was preceded by Lieut. Kitchell Snow, a Boston boy, a war-time flyer, a member of the Massachusetts National Guard, and whose privately owned plane was the first commercial craft to operate or land on the airport. Lieutenant Snow was later killed in the first of the few fatal accidents which have marked the march of progress at the airport. His family's interest, however, in aviation continued, for his brother, Lieut. Crocker Snow, is President of Skyways, Inc., one of the first schools of student instruction in Massachusetts.

On September 8, 1923, official dedication of the airport was attended by many prominent pilots and airplanes from the Army Air Service. At this dedication there were perhaps a few converted military planes flown by civilian flyers. These forerunners provided an interesting contrast, indeed, to the situation which exists today when, under normal conditions, we may boast of 100 of the most modern and luxurious aircraft as compared with perhaps 10 or 15 military planes.

May we again mention the provisions of the Legislature which permitted commercial flying from the Boston Airport, for it was not long before itinerant aviators and occasional visitors from other parts of the country began to land at the Boston Airport, some to carry newspapers, some to rush photographs to Boston from distant points, some for publicity purposes, and soon there was established a small tool house and commercial gasoline station, which formed the headquarters for the first fixed-base commercial operator at the Boston Airport, Mr. Edward T. O'Toole of Winthrop.

The contemplated enlargement of the landing area will take place towards the left of the picture, Governor's Island being in this direction. Enlargement towards the north and northeast will take place as additional hangar sites are called for. The view also strikingly illustrates the safety of the Airport which is almost entirely surrounded by water, the proximity to the City Proper, and the close connection with harbor and rail facilities. In 1929 a steamer was tied up to the bulkhead line and a huge tri-motor Ford was placed on board for shipment to Europe — the first plane to be exported abroad in this manner.

A THRILLING AND IMPORTANT EVENT.

One event followed another and on September 6, 1924, the first official landing in the United States was made by the Army Around-the-World-Flyers, piloting especially built planes and flown by Lieuts. Lowell Smith, Eric Nelson and Leigh Wade. These planes were an auspicious intimation of what the future had in store. Flying to Boston from England via Iceland, Greenland and Nova Scotia, they landed in the adjacent harbor with pontoons, were hauled to the airport proper where the pontoons were replaced by wheels and the flight then continued to their starting point in California. What a contrast the arrival of these planes of 1924 make with today's activities! Now commercial planes of all sizes and descriptions by the scores depart and arrive hourly from all points in the United States, to say nothing of the scheduled arrivals and departures daily of eight tri-motored passenger planes carrying fourteen passengers each and making connections with other planes to all parts of the country.

MAYOR CURLEY STEPS IN.

It may be said that this event marked the turning point for the City of Boston in commercial aviation and it was at this time that the City of Boston first took an active part and an active interest in the welfare of commercial aviation and the Boston Airport. It was at this time that his Honor the Mayor, James M. Curley, saw the future possibilities of commercial aviation and was personally responsible for making available an appropriation of $2,500, so that this important event might take place and so that proper facilities could be provided for the occasion. Through his Honor's efforts a landing barge was secured, the roads to the airport proper were improved, additional necessary area was made available for parking of automobiles and for the landing of aircraft and additional toilets and other facilities were provided for the throngs which flocked to the airport to greet the intrepid flyers. To quote the words of a prominent wartime pilot, "It was the most thrilling spectacle of my life." It was indeed an inspiring spectacle when from the gray muck of the coast of Maine there appeared over Orient Heights in formation the three planes which had so successfully flown around the world through sleet and ice, through snow and fog, through the chilling wastes of the Arctic and over the torrid plains of India and Egypt—the flags flying, whistles blowing—it was a sight which those who witnessed it will never forget.

THE CITY'S INTEREST PICKS UP.

From that time on the city's interest in the airport increased. It soon became evident that there must be an expansion of the airport area. It was also realized that the location of the hangars was in the wrong place and that many changes must be made and funds appropriated if commercial aviation was to advance. There was much controversy as to who should foster the development of the airport. The Commonwealth disclaimed any responsibility except as incurred by its lease to the military service, the city evinced great interest in the project but was not sure of its position owing to the prior control by the Commonwealth.

FURTHER LEGISLATIVE ACTION.

In 1927 a Recess Committee was appointed by the Legislature to investigate the entire subject of commercial aviation and was especially charged with the responsibility of determining a policy as to the development of airports and landing fields. This committee determined, what has since become recognized as a nation-wide policy, that the establishment of landing fields and airports was a legal and proper obligation and a function of municipalities; and in the year 1928 legislation was passed making it legal for cities and towns to acquire land for airport purposes. This was sound legislation since airports are analogous to roads in that they are a necessary part of the highways of the air. They are the means by which the traveling public of the future, yes, of the present, are enabled to come and go directly to various communities from all parts of the world.

GROWTH OF THE AIRPORT.

In the meantime the airport had begun to grow. Starting with two original runways 1,500 feet long by 100 feet wide, additional area was slowly added by grading and surfacing with cinders. Small appropriations were made from time to time by the Commonwealth under the urgent plea to increase safety. Volume of traffic had not yet been considered. The greater part of the expansion, however, was made possible by army appropriations and by contributions from public spirited and air-minded citizens, such as Mr. Chandler Hovey, who also donated funds for the purchase of a floodlight. This floodlight, though small and simple in comparison to the powerful and elaborate equipment now in use, marked a turning point in that it recognized that air transportation to be successful must be carried on at night. Not alone did the airport grow as regards to the available space for landing, but it grew with respect to physical equipment, the number of commercial planes and hangars. To the veteran "Eddie" O'Toole's two-seated airplane were added the planes of other adventurous pilots, taking people up for their first "hop" and with the slogan "a million-dollar-thrill for a five-dollar-bill!" What a contrast is this period of growth with that of today! What a contrast with the beautifully laid out Administration Building and passenger terminal, with its spacious lounge, lobby and waiting room, with its cool and delightful restaurant overlooking the flying area, and last, but most important, the hourly arrival and departure of planes and passengers escorted by attendants to comfortably upholstered seats in a most modern type of cabin airplanes whose interiors excel if not surpass the average Pullman train!

In the space of three years mud flats, hills and hollows in which, to quote Mayor Curley, "a flock of elephants could have hid," have given place to one of the finest landing areas in the United States, surrounded by hangars representing a total investment of well over a half a million dollars, with approaches well lighted, drained and surfaced and with fenced inclosures from which the public and passengers can view the operations and the arrival and departure of planes in comfort and in safety.

COMING OF THE AIR MAIL—PASSENGER PLANES—HANGARS.

Up until 1926 no provision had been made for the housing of commercial airplanes. They were forced to remain staked down and exposed to the elements except for an occasional courtesy to prominent visiting planes which were sometimes stored in army or National Guard hangars. At about this time there was added to the locally operated planes the mail planes of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., and on July 1, 1926, the first regularly scheduled air mail was flown from Boston to New York. Not only did this mark the opening of the air mail route at Boston, but it was the first contract air mail route established in the United States and was and still is known as CAM No. 1. It was an epoch-making event in that it marked the transition from governmentally operated to privately operated air mail routes and subsequently the beginning of regularly scheduled air transportation for passengers as well as for mail and express. For this service to continue, and more important for it to grow and expand, it was vitally necessary that a commercial hangar or hangars should be built. After much negotiation as to terms, the Commonwealth leased to the Boston Airport Corporation a plot of land for a commercial hangar site. On this site was built a hangar costing $20,000, a huge sum in those days for an airplane hangar; and the present airport is a tribute to the men sponsoring this hangar who had the courage at that time to make this investment in an unknown field. How well they were justified is answered by the beautifully appointed hangars and buildings which now have been erected at the Boston Airport, representing a total investment of well over a half million dollars. It is interesting to call to the attention of our readers that the funds for Boston's first commercial hangar were made available through the trustees of the Ames estate, the founders of which were early pioneers in railroading and in the manufacture of agricultural implements. The old Boston Airport Corporation hangar has, through the march of events, become obsolete and it has been torn down, but only to be replaced by a beautiful new hangar of most modern construction with Mr. F. L. Ames as its president and operating head.

In this early hangar were housed the planes of visitors and the Colonial Air Mail. The Boston Airport Corporation itself became agents for new types of commercial airplanes and engaged in the various phases of commercial aviation, such as photography, air transportation, student instruction and repair work. The old Boston Airport Corporation with its tenants has disappeared, but in its place stand five of the most modern type of commercial hangars; that of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., which includes offices and a passenger terminal, the hangar, repair shop and show room of the East Coast Aircraft and Sales, Inc., the hangar and offices of Skyways, Inc., the combination hangar and passenger terminal of the Curtiss-Wright Flying Service, Inc., and another hangar belonging to the same company which is used exclusively for repair and maintenance work.

LINDBERGH LANDS!

On the heels of the early commercial development there took place from New York to Paris the epochal flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. This flight, combined with the money market condition at the time, gave a tremendous impetus to commercial aviation. Shortly after his return to this country Lindbergh was a guest of the Boston Airport. He, like many citizens of Boston, has not visited the airport since. We feel that it would now be a revelation for them to do so.

FURTHER DEVELOPMENT—THE CITY TAKES OVER THE AIRPORT.

The development of the airport is stressed at this point since it emphasized the need for immediate provisions for a future plan of growth and expansion. Not only was growth and expansion necessary but assurance was needed that a continuance of the airport was to be had under the guidance of those most interested in its welfare. Consequently, negotiations were opened between the city and the Commonwealth and in September, 1928, 165 acres of land and mud flats, including that already developed by the Commonwealth, was leased to the City of Boston for airport purposes, subject to the prior rights of the army and the Commonwealth and subject to the lease held by the Boston Airport Corporation.

Under this new arrangement the development of the Boston Airport has gone ahead with amazing rapidity. To date the City of Boston has expended or obligated sums to the amount of $775,000. With this money much has been done. The landing area has been trebled, unlimited expansion of the landing area has been provided for and is rapidly going forward. A most complete system of lighting for night flying has been installed, new roads, approaches and street lights have been added, landscaping and architectural effects have not been forgotten, a complete system of drainage has been installed, fences and gates for the convenience and protection of passengers and the public are a decided asset and the Boston Airport as a whole lacks nothing in the way of equipment to compare favorably with any airport in the world. Favorable comments from air travelers the world over are continuously being received. Just prior to the taking over of the airport by the city there were approximately fifteen commercial airplanes based at the Boston Airport. Today there are at least seventy-five, and the military planes brings this to a total of 100 or nearly a five-fold growth in less than two years.

REGULAR PASSENGER SERVICE.

The most important event subsequent to the taking over of the airport by the city was the opening of a regularly scheduled New York passenger service which was inaugurated by the Colonial Air Transport on April 15, 1929. This service started with the use of three fourteen passenger tri-motor Fords making two round trips daily from Boston to New York. This particular service has grown so that at the present time there are four round trips daily and several additional planes have been put into service.

In addition to this service other air transportation lines have been inaugurated. Three round trips each day are made to Springfield, Massachusetts, two round trips each day are made to Albany, New York, and there are two round trips each day via Springfield to New York City. A person or a citizen in Boston has his choice of six different New York departures!

In addition to the New York to Boston Service and those above mentioned, a tri-motor Ford runs daily to Hyannis, Edgartown and Martha's Vineyard, and another plane runs daily from White River Junction, Vermont, to Boston and return, carrying passengers and newspapers. Still another line is being contemplated to Portland and Bar Harbor. The Air Mail Service has been increased by the addition of planes. Daily service to New York via the Coast Line and using seaplanes is also being inaugurated.

AUXILIARY EQUIPMENT AND AIDS TO NAVIGATION.

In addition to the physical equipment furnished and installed by the City of Boston the city administration has been able, with the cooperation of the Federal Government, to provide many other facilities and aids to air navigation. Planes arriving and departing are reported by radio, by telegraph on a private wire and through equipment installed for this exclusive purpose by the United States Department of Commerce. A complete radio broadcasting station has been installed at Castle Island, South Boston, by means of which weather reports are transmitted to airplanes and other airports and by means of which two-way communication can be maintained with airplanes equipped with radio. This station is controlled from the Administration Building at the airport. In addition to this station there is located at the airport a radio beam projector, by means of which an airplane may fly from Boston to New York without deviating from its course. This equipment is especially valuable at night and in bad weather. Its installation has saved many lives and has prevented many accidents. The cost of this equipment furnished by the Federal Government alone represents an investment by them of approximately $700,000.

The Federal Government, under the auspices of the United States Department of Agriculture, has also provided a most complete meteorological service which is constantly attended, twenty-four hours a day, 365 days in the year, by a personnel of five men. This weather service is of great value to the public as well as to the successful and safe navigation of aircraft.

In the Administration Building have also been provided for the public a telegraph station, a consolidated ticket and information bureau, a spacious dining room for the public and for passengers, a lunch room for pilots and mechanics, a well-equipped waiting room and lobby, administrative offices, a first-aid room, garage and toilet facilities. Provision has also been made for a post office, baggage room and customs offices, as well as space for future growth. A control tower has been provided which permits a view of the entire flying area and from which all flying and mechanical equipment is regulated.

FLYERS' MEMORIAL.

At the entrance to the Administration Building there is a Memorial Portico flanked by marble tablets bearing the names of the World War heroes who gave their lives for their country while fighting in the air. This feature was made possible by a popular subscription of $15,000.

SUPERVISION AND PLANNING.

When the city was granted control of the Boston Airport its first step was to place the administration under the control of the Park Department and the development that has been here outlined has been due in the greatest measure to the careful, untiring, and far-sighted efforts of Commissioner William P. Long, who though already charged with the administration of one of the largest of city departments, has still found time to carefully supervise and regulate the numerous details involved in the administration of an airport.

The second step under the city's administration was to secure the services of a man properly qualified as an airport manager. After careful search and investigation there was secured the services of a Boston man, Capt. Albert L. Edson, World War and commercial flyer, who had been actively identified with the airport since its inception. Captain Edson in addition to being a qualified commercial and military pilot is an engineering graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and had successfully acted for five years in an important executive capacity for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

MAYOR CURLEY'S PLANS AND FORESIGHT.

Mayor Curley's interest in the airport in his previous administration has already been spoken of. Prior to his election he made no promises as to what he would do, but in his inaugural address a prominent place was given to plans for the development of the airport. Even with the enlarged area and new hangar sites already provided for by the city it had become evident more land must be obtained for future growth. More hangar sites were in demand, a thirty-two-passenger plane, which required more landing space, visited the airport and plans are already under way to operate forty and fifty passenger air liners. Still more important had become the question of traffic density. This problem alone required a larger area so that the ever increasing numbers of planes might land and take off simultaneously.

The Mayor recommended and immediately obtained an appropriation for the enlargement of the flying area, he introduced a bill to the State Legislature, before which he personally appeared, and advocated the lease to the city of additional land. Through his efforts the passage of the bill was secured, the lease has been signed and the work of filling, grading and surfacing additional areas is now going ahead.

Mayor Curley's vision, however, is not limited to the morrow; he is not content with half-way measures. Simultaneously with his efforts to secure additional land from the Commonwealth he advocated the acquisition of Governor's Island. This island, which has been for years the property of the United States Government, lies immediately adjacent to the airport, being partially connected thereto by filled land and mud flats. Its future development by the city will be of inestimable value for aviation purposes. By leveling the island and using the material for fill it can be increased to approximately three times its present size and can be connected to the mainland and the present airport, thus making Boston's Airport not only the best, but one of the largest in the country.

TRAFFIC CONGESTION A PROBLEM.

We have already spoken of traffic density and the need for a larger landing area. There is a limit, however, to the size of an airport which is to be operated efficiently, just as there is a limit to the size of the roads which serve a city. Boston's automobile traffic, for instance, could not be handled by one road, no matter how large. It is evident that in the near future, as the number of planes coming and going increase, that Boston must have either additional airports or must have multiple-units of its present airport. This latter solution is offered by the development of Governor's Island. On or adjacent to it there will be developed a secondary or auxiliary landing field for smaller types of planes and for student instruction and local pleasure flying, the main airport being reserved for the heavier craft and for transport operations to and from other large cities.

AN EPOCHAL EVENT—LIGHTER-THAN-AIR DEVELOPMENT.

One of the epochal events of aviation was written into history during the past year by the flight around the world of the German dirigible "Graf Zeppelin." The future of air transportation, especially over land up to distances of two thousand miles, is clearly to be developed by the use of heavier-than-air craft, so-called airplanes. For regular operation, however, over long distances of water, such as transatlantic and transcontinental flights, the "Graf Zeppelin" voyage points the way to the immediate development of such lighter-than-air craft.

BOSTON AS A WORLD AIR TERMINAL.

To successfully take its place as the world's center of commercial aviation, as the logical transatlantic and transcontinental terminus of the various air lines that are to come, it is entirely appropriate and necessary that Boston should proceed with plans for the development of an area on which such lighter-than-air craft as the "Graf Zeppelin" and the "Los Angeles" can be handled and moored. With this in mind, the Mayor has rightly advocated the erection on Governor's Island of a dirigible mast and future provisions for a dirigible hangar. The Governor's Island location, when the land has been leveled and its area increased, will be admirably suited for such purpose.

GOVERNOR'S ISLAND—AN ANCIENT FORTRESS TO BE CONVERTED TO COMMERCIAL USES.

With these practical developments and consideration in mind, the Mayor proceeded immediately to negotiate with the government for title to Governor's Island. It is well known that the Government is always loath to part with property which it has acquired, especially islands located in a harbor which may be a possible site for future harbor defense, and consequently the efforts of Mayor Curley's envoys to Washington were not met with immediate success. James M. Curley, however, is not a man to take "No" for an answer. A personal visit to Washington, including a conference with President Hoover, finally brought about the desired result, and the development of Governor's Island by the City of Boston awaits only the transfer of the necessary titles. This marks the final step in the development which will make Boston's Airport the largest as well as the best in the world.

SUMMARY OF ACHIEVEMENTS AND BENEFITS TO THE CITY.

Let us sum up the achievements of the past two years and review the benefits which have accrued by the development of the Boston Airport.

The airport has been well surfaced and trebled in size.

Every possible step has been taken to make it the safest airport in the world.

Its physical equipment, buildings and conveniences are second to none.

Approximately a million and a half of taxable property and equipment has been added to the assessors' list.

Regular employment has been given to at least 200 persons at a conservative average annual salary of $2,000 each. This means a return to wage-earners of $400,000, a splendid investment of the city's funds from this point alone!

Regularly scheduled passenger and mail lines provide the people of Boston and business men with safe, swift and dependable transportation to distant points. To New York alone there are eight planes each day, or an average of one every sixty minutes during business hours.

The Army of the United States and the Massachusetts National Guard have been provided with a landing field which will better enable them to provide Boston with excellent aerial defense in time of war.

Associated industries have been stimulated.

Adjacent property values have been increased.

LOCATION AND FUTURE DEVELOPMENT.

As to the future, there is much still to be done and a promise of still greater achievement and benefits.

The vehicular tunnel connecting East Boston to the mainland will bring the Boston Airport within five minutes of the City Hall and the business district of the city.

Future development of the land, including the extension of Porter street to the Airport and Wood Island, will give the residents of East Boston direct access to the new bathing beaches at Wood Island Park.

Development of the Jeffries Point section will result in increased property values and better living conditions for the people there located.

Employment for thousands instead of hundreds will be provided.

Boston is particularly fortunate in having an airport location which is within two miles from the center of the city. No other city in the world can achieve this result without tremendous property takings and expenditures. The airports of other great cities are at an average distance of ten miles from the center of population and even under these conditions involve property takings running into millions of dollars.

Few large cities are blessed with a location which has combined provisions for land and sea planes. Not only has Boston such provisions, but its airport location is also a terminal of railroads and steamship lines. Truly one can say that here is the place where land, water and air meet.

Amazing results have been secured in the last year. The work must continue, without abatement, to make Boston the center of air transportation and the greatest sea and air port in the world.

CONTRACT AMENDED.

The Royal Shade and Screen Company have been allowed to amend the contract for curtain work at the new Brighton High School, in the Brighton district, by striking out the words and figures "60 days from that date," on page 12, section 3, and substituting therefor the word and figures "September 1, 1930," so that the beginning of the last paragraph of said section 3, on page 12, shall read: "The work is to be commenced on or about May 15, 1930, and is to be completed on or before September 1, 1930."

MAYOR CURLEY PLEADS FOR UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF BY INDUSTRIAL LEADERS AND ANNOUNCES HUGE PROJECT SOON TO BE STARTED THAT WILL EASE TENSION.

Mayor Curley on July 26 made the following statement in regard to the unemployment question:

A new element is unfortunately manifesting itself in the psychology of fear upon the part of persons now holding positions that unless checked may materially delay the return of the desired prosperity and activity in industry, essential to the well-being, not only of the individual citizen, but of the units comprising the United States of America.

My attention has been directed within the past week to a growing practice among certain concerns in Boston of discontinuing the services of competent employees who through years of faithful and devoted service have worked up to sizeable incomes. The possibility of reprisals on the part of the public were they familiar with the process recently introduced of discontinuing the services of capable women and men and replacing them, for no other reason than the score of economy, with untrained and less competent persons should deter intelligent leaders in industry from pursuing this policy. The psychological effect upon those still employed and who tremble at their own prospects when they find coworkers losing their opportunity for a livelihood in some line of activity to which they have given their best during a lifetime, is injurious to every industry in the community. The individual who loses his position ceases to be a contributing factor to the restoration of activity in business or confidence, because of inability, due to the cutting of his income, to make purchases, while the individual who has been permitted to retain his position feels it necessary to husband his resources because of the prospects of meeting, sooner or later, a similar fate.

In a time like the present there is no reason to require that the worker alone should bear the burden of industrial depression. The employer should be willing to assume his portion rather than adding to the burden and delaying the arrival of prosperity by discharging help, reducing wages or giving indefinite leave of absence without pay to employees. There is every indication that the American nation is rapidly passing from the period of depression to a period of unprecedented prosperity and at a time like the present, no employer is justified in considering himself a good citizen who fails to make the necessary sacrifice and assume his portion of the burden and responsibility. Courage and leadership are necessary and that it exists among certain of our citizens is gratifyingly apparent from developments during the past week. A conference with certain civic leaders held upon Thursday revealed plans for the immediate future, which will not only result directly in opportunities for employment for additional hundreds who are now without work but, through its stimulus to general business, should aid largely in renewed confidence as to the future.

The size and scope of the project, the details of which must be withheld for the time being, will draw the eyes of the entire country to Boston as a community that dares to go ahead when others hesitate. It will demonstrate that our city with its reputation for conservatism is quick to recognize its opportunity, and has no lack of leadership in its course toward its destiny.

Economists agree that investors can obtain a greater return for their building dollars today than has been possible in ten years. The low price of materials, the increased efficiency of labor and low money rates make the present a more favorable time for proceeding with needed construction than we shall see for years to come. This condition is going to produce wealth for those who have sufficient vision to go ahead with needed improvements promptly.

The same type of unselfish business statesmanship which has resulted in the development of the Park square section with its magnificent hotels and office buildings, the widening of Stuart street and other important arteries, and many other elements of a far-sighted plan of civic progress, is sponsoring this newest and most spectacular project.

I have been prompted to make this statement in advance of a detailed announcement of the project because of my gratitude for the ready and substantial response which has come from my fellow citizens to my plea for a release of needed construction enterprises.

It indicates that there is growing up in the minds of business leaders a sense of partnership with the men who work, and a determination to end as soon as possible the distress of those who have been deprived of work through no fault of their own, or who while at present employed tremble at future prospects founded upon the misfortunes of coworkers.

Said highway and the land, exclusive of trees or structures standing upon or affixed thereto, in which an easement for street purposes is hereby taken, is bounded and described as follows:

Northwesterly by Commonwealth avenue, forty feet; northeasterly by the northeasterly line of said Melvin avenue as hereby laid out, by three measurements, fifty feet, one hundred ten and 94-100 feet on a curve of four hundred ninety-three and 9-100 feet radius and one hundred fifty-seven and 19-100 feet; southeasterly by Allston street, forty feet; and southwesterly by the southwesterly line of said Melvin avenue as hereby laid out, by three measurements, one hundred fifty-seven and 19-100 feet, one hundred one and 94-100 feet on a curve of four hundred fifty-three and 9-100 feet radius and fifty feet.

Trees or structures standing upon or affixed to the aforescribed land shall be removed therefrom within sixty days following a notice of the city's intention to enter upon said land for the purpose of constructing said improvement.

Included in the above described land (taken hereunder) are parts of certain parcels of land registered in the Land Court, said parcels being shown on the plan hereinbefore referred to, and said parts being the portions of said registered parcels which lie between the side lines of said Melvin avenue and the middle line thereof; the owners of said portions, the number of the certificate of title and the book and page where the same are registered are as follows:

Bartholomew J. Connolly, Cert. 6445, Book 28, page 45.

Hannah F. Hale, Cert. 25727, Book 124, page 127.

Charles H. Hemenway, Cert. 24610, Book 119, page 10.

E. V. B. Parke, Cert. 26475, Book 128, page 75.

E. V. B. Parke, Cert. 26476, Book 128, page 76.

E. V. B. Parke, Cert. 26477, Book 128, page 77.

Betterments are to be assessed for the making of the aforesaid improvement.

Ordered, That this Board estimates that the abutting lots of land on both sides of said Melvin avenue as hereby laid out, from Commonwealth avenue to Allston street, will receive benefit or advantage, beyond the general advantage to all real estate in said city, from the improvement herein ordered; each of said lots to the amount hereinafter respectively set against it; said lots and the supposed owners thereof being shown on a plan marked "City of Boston, Melvin Avenue, Brighton, Assessment Plan, May 31, 1930, William J. Sullivan, Chief Engineer, Street Laying-Out Department," and on file in the office of said department.

Voted, That this Board determines that no person sustains damages in his estate by the making of the public improvement, consisting of the laying out and construction of Melvin avenue (formerly Elizabeth avenue), Brighton district, as a highway, from Commonwealth avenue to Allston street, under the order of the Board and awards no damages therefor.

SAFE DRIVING.

Most cities and towns have a long list of "don'ts" but do little to educate the drivers of cars. If one half the time that is used trying to make people do something or not to do something was spent in educating the drivers much better results would be obtained. We need drivers' schools and the city or town that first starts such a school will be doing a real service.

LAND-TAKING IN BRIGHTON.

The Mayor has approved the order of the Board of Street Commissioners for the taking of land for a public improvement consisting of the laying out and construction of Elizabeth avenue, Brighton, district, as a highway, from Commonwealth avenue to Allston street, with the name of Elida avenue or some other distinctive name, bounded and described as follows:

A highway named Melvin avenue is hereby laid out, from Commonwealth avenue to Allston street, and ordered constructed.

MAYOR CURLEY DELIVERS STIRRING ADDRESS TO MEMBERS OF CITIZENS' MILITARY TRAINING CAMP AT CAMP DEVENS UPON OCCASION OF VISIT AND REVIEW OF TROOPS.

On Saturday, July 26, Mayor Curley was entertained and delivered an address before the citizen soldiery in training at Camp Devens. He was the guest of the 101st Field Artillery for the time of his visit. He was met at the main gate, Camp Devens, by Colonel Knabenshue and Colonel Needham, with an escort of one troop of the 110th cavalry with a mounted band.

The Mayor was escorted to Edmunds Field, where he addressed the National Guard troops and was received by the National Guard officers. A review of the C. M. T. C. was tendered his Honor following which the Mayor addressed them.

During the afternoon the Mayor delivered an address as follows:

War, like death, comes unannounced and both are as certain in the lives of nations and individuals as day and night. Every precaution that the ingenuity of man can conceive of is applied to prevent the coming of death. Vast sums of money are expended for bacteriological and pathological research work, great universities are erected and within their walls are assembled the learned men representative of every race, creed and clime, laboring unceasingly for the prolongation of human life; hospitals are erected throughout the world and health departments developed, water supplies examined and improved sanitation perfected, parks and playgrounds established, improved places of habitation provided and by law every precautionary safeguard that the ingenuity of man can devise established and enforced for the prolongation of human life. All this work is done and more because of the certainty of death. The prudent man in addition makes preparation for that which is a certainty through provision in the form of insurance or investment for the protection of his dependents.

What is true in the case of death of the individual is equally true in the case of a nation as regards the certainty of war, and unquestionably will continue to be true until such time as, through the development of a higher spiritual complex, greed, envy, malice and selfishness have been replaced by love of one's fellowman, based on a realization of the fact that we take from this life only that which is good that we give during our brief stay here.

There is no means of determining when human nature may change but until such time as that period of ideal Utopianism arrives there is no way in which a nation can justify the failure to adopt the same character of preparedness against war that the individual and the communities adopt against death.

TRAINING YOUTH FOR SERVICE.

The Citizens' Military Training Camp represents the most economical and efficient method of training the youth of our land for service in defence of country in the hour of the nation's trial. We have a profound appreciation of the value of the citizens' military training when we realize the force of the words of Lincoln in his Gettysburg address: "A government of and for and by the people." This phrase of Lincoln's, rightly interpreted, conveys to us a realization that equality of opportunity can only continue just so long as equality of obligation is recognized and respected. The highest, the noblest, the most ideal recognition of equality of obligation is that which is represented in the service of the attendant at the Citizens' Military Training Camp and service in the National Guard.

This service, of a most rigorous and exacting nature, calls for not only the sacrifice of time and energy but deprives the individual of the joys and comforts of family and home in order that he may fit himself, should the hour of crisis arise, to better serve his country and make possible the perpetuation of the government under which we live.

The service which we give to our country, the duty which is an answer to its appeal for the defence of its honor and integrity and the preservation of its peace and prosperity,—this is patriotism; and every instinct of loyalty and impulse of manhood demand that when the Republic calls the patriot in peace or war must respond with prompt and unquestioning obedience.

It is not difficult to be patriotic in the days of war when drums are beating, bugles calling, flags flying and the tramp of marching feet is echoing in the streets; then every emotion is aroused, the country's call to arms is ringing in the air, the soldier is hailed as a patriot and applauded as a hero, and the glamor and glory of the hour is in every heart.

When the war is over, when the guns have ceased to roar, when the weary, war-worn soldier has come back to the drab days of peace, when the nation is tired of strife and all it means, when emotion is exhausted and even the maimed and stricken victims of field and hospital are viewed with indifference, then comes the day of civic duty, and the real test of patriotism has begun.

The fire and frenzy of battle are done, the naked ugliness of war and waste is seen by all, the burden of the red butcher's bill must be met, and the country's need is for work, for the service that is plain duty, that has neither music nor marching, cheering crowds nor thundering guns to hearten the man who faces the task that patriotism demands must be met, the thankless task of thrift and wisdom, of recuperation and reconstruction.

PATRIOTISM OF PEACE.

The patriotism of peace is a virtue of fine texture; it is the easier to break than to build, to destroy than to restore; the demands and duties of peace call for patience and fortitude; the applauding clamor of war is gone and only the carping criticism of peace is here. The patriot of peace has the harder task; it is more useful and less spectacular than the work of war, and yet only in the steady, normal work of the days of retrenchment and restoration, in the humdrum days, are work and wages made possible and the land prepared for the dread days of conflict.

When we chant the glories of them who dared all and gave all, the patriot in arms, let us not forget the patriot of peace whose useful services enable a restored country to meet the obligations of national honor and gratitude.

Let no man attempt to discount the value of the service given freely to our country in its days of trial by the American youth of every generation, who have gone out joyously and uncomplainingly to face the hazards of battle and bivouac that liberty might be preserved, the Flag unstained and the Republic's integrity maintained. They made the supreme sacrifice; their glory is secure.

It is said republics are ungrateful and give only grudging recognition to the services and sacrifices of its patriots and heroes. It would be more truthful to say that republics are laggards; they move slowly and hesitatingly; but they do move after days of pain and anguish, delay and disappointment. The Contemporary generation that has lived through war and witnessed its results, is often neglectful of them who have given all to serve the country; yet the laggard days pass and the conscience of the Republic is roused. Too often the recognition of national duty comes tardily, but it comes; for the heart of the nation is sound.

TRIBUTE TO G. A. R.

He who on some Memorial Day has watched the thin, blue lines of the G. A. R. march slowly down the street of town and village, can read in the glowing faces of the younger generation the emotions of admiration and gratitude that is in their hearts. The white-haired old heroes are dropping out one by one to fill some narrow, flag-marked grave on a green New England hillside, but they will never be forgotten; they have achieved immortality and the memory of their patriotic service and sacrifice will live in the minds and hearts of their countrymen.

The soldiers of a later day, the patriots of the war of yesterday, are now living through their days of neglect and suffering; but they will not, cannot, be forgotten, even though a squabbling and indifferent Congress forgets its duty. The World War veteran will have his day; he is remembered by the heart of America, and the glory of his work and the splendor of his service cannot be dimmed by Congressional neglect and official ingratitude.

To us in these days of peace, when men seek to forget the hazards and horrors of yesterday and ignore the memory of the dead and the labors of the living, there is need for a finer, a more disinterested patriotism; one that connotes duty and service for the public good, the upbuilding of the country and the healing of its wounds; a patriotism willing to confront greed and graft, to face clamor and misunderstanding, a patriotism that receives no other reward than hostile criticism and distortion of motive. This is a day for the patriot of peace, who knows the present and remembers the past, who can face contumely with courage and do his duty though the stars fall.

The name of the patriot of peace is legion; he will stand up to be counted and in the days to come will see that the sacrifices of the soldier of yesterday will not have been made in vain.

The patriot of peace is the supplement of the soldier of war; the country needs the patriotism of both to preserve its honor and safety; it is a patriotism written in service and cemented in blood.

MAYOR CURLEY SCORES CAMP DEVENS BARRACKS AS FIRE TRAPS.

The Mayor also vigorously attacked what he termed the niggardly policy of housing "the flower of the Commonwealth in the same old fire traps that have been here for thirteen years."

The Mayor's denunciation of the barracks housing the youths of the C. M. T. C. and the members of the National Guard followed a brief inspection of the camp.

He said:

Looking around here today I see the same old fire traps are still doing duty that were here thirteen years ago. Some of these shacks are highly inflammable, and if they got going we would have a terrible conflagration. Yet we ask the flower of our Commonwealth to live in them and risk their lives when it is absolutely unnecessary.

There shouldn't be any difficulty in a nation as prosperous as America to provide suitable accommodations for our militia and our citizens who put in their time in training in order that they may be ready should the call come. The trouble with many is that they are too busy with their own affairs to worry about public matters. Some individuals are so busy making money for themselves that they care nothing for the public safety of those on whom they would have to depend if war broke out.

What provision has been made up here for safeguarding the men who are serving their country? Certainly not much when they are housed in these old shacks.

I have no sympathy with these pacifists who, for the sake of their theories, would leave our country defenceless and who issue propaganda against providing adequately for our military forces. We have no means of determining how long our nation will follow the path of peace. Yet back in Boston, along our waterfront, two-thirds of the buildings owned by the government are abandoned. Why, our standing army contains fewer men than there are bootleggers in Illinois and New York.

Neither have I any sympathy with the religious organizations opposed to military camps for our youths. Many lives might have been preserved in the last war if we had been better prepared.

We certainly are not encouraging these youths who come to these camps to serve their country when we compel them to sleep in barracks that are distinct fire hazards. Our duty is to promote the highest conceivable character among these boys and to safeguard their lives as well.

I have nothing but contempt for those leaders in industrial life who haggle over letting their employees attend the militia and citizens' training camps.

President Hoover is coming to Boston during the American Legion convention. I don't know whether or not it will be possible to bring him to Camp Devens. But Secretary of War Hurley is also coming, and I will place my car at his disposal and also make every effort to have him come up here and see conditions for himself.

I can think of nothing more appropriate to describe Camp Devens than Goldsmith's "Deserted Village." If one of these buildings up here filled with men was destroyed in a conflagration it would be the greatest stigma ever placed on our Commonwealth.

NAMING OF SCHOOL IN MEMORY OF WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT

Mrs. Pigeon offered the following:

ORDERED, That the Brighton intermediate school, located in the former Brighton High School building, is hereby named the William Howard Taft School, in memory of William Howard Taft, 1857-1930.

This leader among men served his country with honor and distinction as Governor of the Philippines, Secretary of War, President of the United States, and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

He was graduated from Yale University in 1878, and in 1880, on graduation from the Cincinnati Law School, shared the first prize for scholarship. As the first Civil Governor of the Philippines, he proved his abilities as a harmonizer and administrator. As Secretary of War, and later in the White House, he exhibited executive abilities of a high order. As a jurist, in his fruitful efforts to codify and simplify the law, to expedite justice by curtailing the law's delays and by casting out old outworn traditions, his achievements were notable. His high sense of honor, his great charm of manner and genial wit brought him the respect and affection of all. At his death on March 8, 1930, he was mourned by the whole nation as an upright and distinguished man and a beneficent personality.

His tolerance, love of humanity and spirit of universal justice will ever remain an inspiration to our children and an incentive to high personal and civil idealism.

The rules were suspended and the order passed by unanimous vote.

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT INTERMEDIATE DISTRICT

On motion of Mrs. Pigeon, it was ORDERED, That the Brighton Intermediate District, located in the former Brighton High School Building, shall hereafter be known as the William Howard Taft Intermediate District, Grades VII, VIII and IX, for boys and girls.

CHARLESTOWN INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL

The Chairman stated that at the request of Representative from Charlestown, Mr. Charles S. Sullivan, Jr., for a public hearing upon the question of erecting a new intermediate school in Charlestown, the School Committee has voted to grant the hearing, and last week so notified Mr. Sullivan. The Committee also notified and invited to be present Mr. Frank A. Goodwin, Chairman of the Finance Commission, and invited every member of the Finance Commission, and the three members of the Special Investigating Committee which is conducting a survey of the schools under authority of Mr. Goodwin. Very late this afternoon the following letter was received from Mr. Goodwin:

THE FINANCE COMMISSION OF THE CITY OF BOSTON

24 School Street,
Boston, Mass.

June 30, 1930.

Mr. Joseph J. Hurlay
Chairman, Boston School Committee
15 Beacon Street, Boston.

My dear Chairman:

I have at hand your letter of June 25, wherein you invite the Finance Commission to appear at the public hearing tonight relative to the proposed intermediate school in Charlestown. I do not see how our appearance could add anything to the letter we sent you under date of June 20, concerning this matter.

I agree with you that the children of Charlestown are as much entitled to whatever advantages may be derived from intermediate class organization as the children of other parts of the city. According to the report of your own Survey Committee they are now getting these advantages and it is not necessary to build a new intermediate school for that purpose.

The children of East Boston, Dorchester, Brighton and other sections of the city are also entitled to the same advantages enjoyed by the children of Charlestown and one of these advantages that Charlestown enjoys that other sections of the city do not enjoy is relief from portables.

You will remember that the Legislative Committee on Municipal Finance was persuaded to authorize the expenditure of an extraordinary sum of money this year for schoolhouse construction, with the express understanding that it was necessary to take the children out of portables, and I think that if you expend from $600,000 to $800,000 in Charlestown for an unnecessary intermediate school you are not only breaking faith with that committee, but you are breaking faith with the children of other sections of the city now occupying the 223 portables.

In your letter to me requesting that either the Commission or myself appear at your meeting tonight, it would seem that you were laboring under a misapprehension, because you ask us to appear to justify two recommendations made by us in connection with the proposed intermediate school in Charlestown, when in fact the two recommendations that you object to were made by your own Survey Committee and only reiterated by us.

These recommendations to abandon the proposed intermediate school made by your own Survey Committee, together with the twelve reasons given therefor, seem to be so conclusive that any opposition to these recommendations must necessarily be political.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Frank A. Goodwin
Chairman.

Chairman: The Chairman of the School Committee desires to state first that Mr. Goodwin has attempted to create a misapprehension when he states that the Legislative Committee on Municipal Finance in according to us five million dollars, more or less, for a building program, in any way intimated that we were not to build an intermediate school in Charlestown; and speaking not as Chairman of the School Committee, but as a man, it seems to me that it would be much more manly for Mr. Goodwin to come up here and listen to the citizens of Charlestown tell their story, rather than at the last minute run off to the press with a letter, send a letter to the press before it was sent to the Chairman of the School Committee, and get the letter to the Chairman of the School Committee so that our answer—and we always have one—cannot get into the same edition as his.

Furthermore, Mr. Goodwin's sole argument and reason for doing that is that his letter is so conclusive it is unanswerable; and intimates that our motives, the motives of these five members serving the city gratuitously, must necessarily be political, and political alone. Although as a matter of fact our Survey Committee—and all respect to them—did not recommend this project, with no political motive, our Board of Superintendents who do not need to seek any vote in Charlestown because they are not elected by the people, approved and recommended it.

I wish that Mr. Goodwin in future would conduct a survey as a real survey should be conducted; namely, gather all the data, mull it over, and not rush to the newspaper offices with a letter.

Dr. Lyons: I would like to correct Mr. Goodwin. He refers to 223 portable schoolhouses. As a matter of fact, this Committee which has been harshly judged in the past on account of the number of portables in use, has got rid of 50 portables, so that instead of 223 we have nearer to 170 and Mr. Goodwin should be notified to that effect, in order that he may use that number in the future.

Chairman: The Committee has had at least one hearing on this subject, perhaps two; and we want to avoid any unnecessary repetition. Go ahead, Mr. Sullivan.

Mr. Sullivan: I requested this public hearing for the sole purpose of having Mr. Goodwin hear our side of the story. I think we in Charlestown are qualified to tell what the situation is in the district far better than any other persons in the city of Boston. We are living in a thoroughly congested district, a district that is only one square mile in area, but which has a population of 38,000 people.

The school buildings in Charlestown, with the exception of the high school, are very old; and at present their condition is by no means excellent. When this appropriation for an intermediate school was put through everybody in Charlestown was well pleased. It was a chance to have a new school, something our district has not seen for years. I well remember the erection of the Charlestown High School, and I know of no school building erected in our district since then.

There was an opportunity to have a new building for the children. Just as Mr. Goodwin said in his letter, the children of Charlestown are just as good as the children in any other section. We in Charlestown are entitled to just as many facilities as any other section of the city, and the children are just as intelligent as in any other section, and just as deserving of fine school facilities as the children elsewhere.

It was somewhat of a surprise to me and to the people of Charlestown to read of this proposition being opposed by the Chairman of the Finance Commission. It was my sincere hope that he would be here tonight to hear the people of Charlestown tell their story; and I confess I am greatly disappointed at his failure to be present.

We have the Frothingham School, the Harvard, the Bunker Hill School, the Warren School—those are the public schools I know, besides the new school, and the primary schools, and every one of those buildings is at least 25 years old. I can testify to that of my own knowledge, and yet notwithstanding that, there is an attempt now being made to take a new building from us.

Now the only question that exists in this case, Mr. Chairman, is whether or not a junior high school is necessary. Every one of us knows that it is absolutely necessary. Since it is absolutely necessary—we need that building, we want that new intermediate school, and we resent the fact that some people are attempting now to take that building away from us.

As I say, there isn't one school building in Charlestown that you can point to and say, "That is a good school; that is a good building; that is a new building, with every new facility." We cannot make that boast, but we wish to make it. We want this new intermediate school.

Everybody knows what the conditions are in our grammar schools today, and we greatly resent the fact that these conditions do exist. But Mr. Chairman, as I have said, I am going to be brief, and I am going to close and ask the School Committee please to give us this new building. We need it, and the people of Charlestown are deserving of it; and I hope the School Committee will give us this new building, notwithstanding the objections of the Finance Committee. I am going to call on Mr. O'Hare, a former School Committeeman, who can explain this subject in detail—Mr. O'Hare.

Chairman: We shall be very glad to hear Mr. O'Hare.

Mr. O'Hare: Mr. Chairman and School Committee Members: This is a much mooted question. It has been going on now since 1926, very actively. Back in 1913, the then Superintendent of Schools appointed your present Superintendent of Schools, Mr. Burke, to formulate curricula in order that we might have better articulation and adopt the 6-3-3 plan in education. At the same time, Mr. Ballou, now Superintendent of Schools in Washington, was appointed to study the question of adaptation of school buildings to the proper housing of intermediate school pupils. By natural growth, the idea and ideals of the School Committees of the past have been to have the grade schools, the schools of the first six grades, situated not too far from the homes of the younger children; then at the completion of the six grades in these schools, have the children migrate to a centrally located junior high school. We in Boston have called them intermediate schools. Other cities call them junior high schools.

Now the great thing that was planned for in this program was the bridging of the first year in high school, where the mortality of children was great, for a great many children, changing then into puberty, left school at the end of the first year in high school, or earlier.

The intermediate school was to give the children teachers specialized in subject work and a curricula that was adaptable.

The child could take a college preparatory for teaching, a college course, or an industrial course, and still be able to change his mind and have enough basic knowledge academically to enable him to transfer to that course for which he was best fitted.

Prior Finance Commissions have chided prior School Committees because they had not built buildings to carry out this plan; but now we find the exact opposite of that situation, the Finance Commission opposing the plan of education, for the opposing of which prior School Committees have been very severely criticized.

You cannot adapt Charlestown buildings to intermediate school needs, no matter who you are, be you builder or architect.

Representative Sullivan was very modest when he said that these buildings were as young as he reported. I don't care whether or not a building is structurally sound if that school is antiquated. If that school is absolutely not O. K. as to play space, for example, it should be abolished.

In 1907, they completed the Charlestown High School, fronting on Monument Square, without one bit of play space for the children. It fronts on four streets flush, without a lawn. The play yard space in every Charlestown school is contrary to all modern school buildings, and there is no person, be he a member of the School Committee or one in private life, who can justify the use of a building built in 1800, such as the Samuel Dexter School.

Practically all the big schools that have been suggested for adaptation to intermediate school work were built when Charlestown was a city. The halls are all situated two or three flights from the ground level,—absolutely contrary to all modern ideas of school building construction.

The only sections that have not fallen into line as yet in their adaptation of buildings for this 6-3-3 plan are South Boston and Charlestown; but South Boston has nine grades in some buildings. We haven't one in Charlestown. There is the South End, for which we purchased a site when I was on the School Committee, at Camden Street, which is still open on account of the Girls' High School situation. The other sections are all cared for.

Let us look at East Boston. In East Boston, we built a new high school on Eagle Hill. We took the old high school and adapted it for intermediate work, for the section towards Winthrop. We built a new school, the Donald McKay, in this section near Boston, a plan which was absolutely satisfactory. We then made the other schools six-grade feeders into these main buildings.

Now there comes up the question of location of the Charlestown Intermediate School. I don't think there was a personal or political element in this situation as it was presented. I gave it much thought at the time. Here is one factor I want you to remember and remember well. If because of rooms not needed we don't need too large an area,—I made the suggestion then that the Warren School be torn down, that Summer Street from School to Pearl be given to us by the City, that we buy the small lot of land, bounded by Summer, School, Pearl and High, and build our intermediate school there. That was absolutely discounted at the time.

Then a suggestion came for the location of the school about where the Prescott group is now. I opposed that location for this reason: On the rear, on one side, you have a cemetery, and on the other side you have industry. On the other side of Medford Street is industry. It was not centrally located.

The site that was finally decided upon is almost an equal distance from every point in Charlestown. I have no holding for or against the lot. It is central from Charlestown Neck or from the section towards Chelsea, or City Square. The children have a common distance, just about the same walking distance.

If you confess belief in this 6-3-3 plan of education,—six grades elementary, three intermediate, and three in high school,—I don't see what can be said against this plan. I don't understand why anyone should attack it.

It is true that we need plenty of small plain brick construction schools for the little tots in the kindergarten and grades 1, 2, and 3. There is no argument against that. These schools should be so located that the children will not have to walk too great distances or cross dangerous main thoroughfares.

Down in the so-called open section, you have a school which is comparatively new. I think about three or four years old, where the smaller children go to school. The Frothingham School was built years ago, with a hall on the top floor. If there is a vacant room in that building, please remember you have vacant seats in the West End section, where ten years ago we never thought we would have vacant rooms. You cannot prevent the shifting of population.

In the Frothingham School you have an old, a very old wooden annex. I think it is still being used in part for shop work. You have the Chapin School, where I went to kindergarten. I don't know when it was built, but it is safe to say in the '40s. It is still safe as far as structure goes, but so are many buildings that we tear down to replace in industry. In New York, they tear down buildings after 25 years to make way for more modern structures.

We want the children in Charlestown to have the same advantages as in any other section and to have new, bright schoolrooms.

You have the Dexter, built in 1800; the old Frothingham School, built in 1874, with a hall on the top floor.

Coming up farther in town we have the Charlestown High School. At the time we visited it in 1926, we found class rooms about as big as the space in which the School Committee is sitting in use. In 1907, they intended to use part of the building as a swimming pool. It has never been so used.

The Copley School up above, a primary school, is fairly modern. It was built in 1901. The Warren School goes back to the dim '60s or '50s. In that school, it is three or four flights to the hall. Then we have the Prescott School and the James A. McDonald School, and facing on Medford Street, the Abram E. Cutter School, an old wooden building.

Coming back on the other side, we have the Warren School, and down on Mead Street, the old Charles E. Daniels School, another relic of ancient times; and you have the Bunker Hill School and the Thomas Starr King School, the latter it was proposed to abandon upon the erection of this new school.

Then in order that the children in the Neck Section might have an idea as to how to attend school, you have the Benjamin F. Tweed School.

In Sullivan Square, going towards Cambridge, there is no modern building, except that we did get a six-room building, a little brick building which could be added to. And we built at the Charlestown High School an annex for the shop work.

Please remember also that the Charlestown High School is not merely a local high school. Any boy who has an idea or ideal to learn about electrical work can go there, from any part of the City, if accommodations permit. It is one of your cooperative industrial high schools, where boys from all sections may attend.

I don't recall that in any of these schools there is one bit of grass, and I don't recall any school yard of sufficient area to meet the necessities of modern school buildings. I don't say that harshly or critically. I merely want to show you exactly what we have.

It has been said that the population of Charlestown is decreasing and the statement has been made that we have a large parochial school attendance. I think Charlestown has reached a static condition as to population. Medford Street is on the river, and is an industrial section. Rutherford Avenue, on the railroad, coming from Chelsea Street, up in that section, is industrial. We have nothing from Medford Street on this side and Rutherford Avenue but homes and families. That some attend parochial schools is their privilege under the idea of education as parents see fit, as long as the State requirements are met.

There is the situation. There is the outline of the condition. If you confess absolute belief in the articulatory system of 6-3-3, if you believe in giving every child the right at the end of the sixth grade to get specialized teaching, if you believe in giving every child the best opportunity, you cannot deny us that intermediate school of sufficient rooms to accommodate our needs.

I don't care whether it is a 20, 30, or 40 room building. You can get statistics from the parochial schools and from the public schools. We don't want a school so mammoth that we cannot occupy it, but we do want you to give our children the best, or as good as the best in any other section of Boston; the same right you give the children in the other sections.

The School Committee has been criticised while acting in good faith under the guidance of the Board of Apportionment, for abandoning school land after buying it. Sometimes it was judicious to do so, because the population shifted almost overnight. Here you have a parcel of land. Who owned it before, I know not. You are the titular owners.

We ask for an intermediate school to fit in with the Boston system. I ask that in the name of fair play for the children of Charlestown. I am not asking merely as the father of a family. My boy has left the district and gone to Latin School, so that I shall derive no direct benefit. I have in mind the well-being of every child in that community, and feel that you should give us an intermediate school now. It has been too long delayed.

Chairman: I'd like to ask you to say a few words on the present intermediate system in Charlestown.

Mr. O'Hare: At the present time, both the parochial and public schools in Charlestown which are the natural feeders to the high school there or the in-town specialized high schools, have eight instead of nine grades. In other words, they go through on the same general basis; they have specialized teachers in some subjects. The eight grade plan was adopted when the old nine grade organization was abolished, right after the turn of the century.

They are carrying on the same system, with the little alteration I have mentioned; and in one or two schools, the brighter children in the seventh and eighth grades take a foreign language, but they haven't the basic preparation to make a choice after junior high school age, if they find at the end of the seventh or eighth, or even the ninth grade, that they want to change courses. They have not the opportunity for the same articulation that they have elsewhere.

It has been said there would be plenty of room in the high school for the ninth grade, but it is inadequate. The hall is inadequate, and there are very small classrooms. I think plenty could be spent here in getting a little more air space and improving conditions generally so that each child might have a good lightsome seat and a lightsome room.

I should like to make our schools such that if a child moves from our district to Roslindale, or moves into our district from elsewhere, he can absolutely carry on because of commonness of opportunity.

Chairman Hurley: Are there any questions?

Mr. Sullivan: I am going to call on City Councillor Green of Charlestown.

Mr. Green: Mr. Chairman and Members of the Honorable Board: I am Councillor from that District. I am pleased to say that I came here tonight to lock horns with the Chairman of the Finance Commission, so I brought a few reports with me. I hope the Committee on this hot night will bear with me. I expected to thresh this situation out. I thought I was better qualified to speak for the people of my district than someone from the outside. Incidentally, I attended both the public and parochial schools of Charlestown, and I think I know conditions there.

I want to thank the Chairman and other members of the Board for the whole-hearted support they have rendered me and Representative Sullivan and other men interested in the building of this school.

I just want to ask the Chairman a few questions: If in this intermediate school we will have a domestic science suite and a machine shop and a woodworking shop, a sewing-room, an electrical shop, a sheet metal shop and a printing plant?

Chairman: The question of what the accommodations will be is, of course, a matter to be decided upon after we appropriate for the school itself—just as you don't know what furniture you will put into your new house until it is built. I think I can speak for the Committee when I say that within the limitations imposed on trade instruction, we shall give, if we appropriate for this building, the same sort of equipment for the same courses as we do in other sections.

Mr. Green: That answers my question. I know how much that will appeal to some in Charlestown who have to fit into industrial life and fight their battles in industry. That is something we need over there.

Mr. Goodwin talks about vacant chairs in the schools, and says there are three thousand, to be exact. I will have to differ with him.

Chairman: You don't assume he has gone over and counted them?

Mr. Green: I think the members of the City Council, or the Committee on Appropriations, made an appropriation of $10,000 extra for the Chairman of the Finance Commission to put on some extra investigators. I don't know whether or not he has done that.

Chairman: Wasn't it your purpose in giving him that appropriation that he might acquire exact knowledge of what he spoke?

Mr. Green: Yes, it was, and it was assumed that he would appoint Boston citizens to do the work. I am led to believe they are citizens of Metropolitan Boston.

Chairman: You figure Fitchburg is part of Metropolitan Boston?

Mr. Green: That is a little far out.

Chairman: Fitchburg, Canton and Brookline, to be exact.

Mr. Green: There is no one from Boston on the investigating committee. Under the then standard system, before 1909, there was provision made in the erection of school buildings for classes of 56, and I understand that has been changed so that now classes are from 35 to 42. At that rate, the teacher should not have more than 35 or 40, depending upon the grade.

Chairman: So far as possible.

Mr. Green: Then these vacant seats are on the old standard.

Chairman: Mr. Goodwin's figures are arrived at on the basis of 50 of 56 to a schoolroom. Our standards have gone beyond that, and are now 35 to 40 or 42.

Mr. Green: Is it true that the Charlestown high school, when it was erected, provided for 740 pupils?

Superintendent: About that.

Mr. Green: Is it true there are 776 now attending the school?

Superintendent: Approximately that.

Mr. Green: There are not many vacant chairs in that school. Is it true that they have set 30 square feet per pupil in school yards?

Chairman: That is the standard.

Mr. Green: If the committee will bear with me I will read a few figures I have here.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I am going to leave it to the intelligence of the members of this Committee, who, I think, have done all that is humanly possible to help us to bring this junior high school to Charlestown. We in Charlestown appreciate your efforts. I don't think any one man is going to place his opinion against the opinions of men and women born and raised in the district, men representing the district in public office, or you men who have travelled throughout the district and have been elected to serve the people in this capacity. I do not believe you are going to be influenced by the opinion of the Chairman of the Finance Commission against the wishes of the people of Charlestown who know best what they need.

I had occasion, Mr. Chairman, to go to Charlestown with the members of the School Committee and with the Chairman of the Schoolhouse Commission, and we looked all over Charlestown; and I was the man that recommended this present site to the men representing the School Committee and the Chairman of the Schoolhouse Commission, Mr. Slattery, at that time. I picked it out because from a geographical standpoint it was dead center, an ideal location, and would probably remove 12 or 15 buildings that were a fire hazard, a health menace, remove them from a crowded community and provide in their place a handsome building, the kind of building you intend to erect. I want to say in conclusion, Mr. Chairman, that I hope you will record this Committee tonight; that you will go on record this evening in favor of our junior high school for Charlestown.

Mr. Sullivan: I'd like to have that ballot taken publicly.

Chairman: All our votes are taken in public. I don't think we will do it tonight, though.

Mr. Sullivan: I'd like it very much if the Committee will see fit to vote on this question tonight.

Dr. Lyons: I don't see why it should not be settled tonight. We are all familiar with the situation. I think the people of Charlestown should know tonight before they leave this room what we are going to do.

Mr. Sullivan: I think the people of Charlestown are entitled to that.

Chairman: It won't give you the school a day sooner.

Mr. Sullivan: It may not give us the school a day sooner, but it will determine this issue for us.

Mr. Gray: I heartily concur in Doctor Lyons' suggestion.

Mr. Green: I think there is no better time to stand up and be counted than tonight,—to be recorded in favor of this project with all these men and women from Charlestown present.

Chairman: I don't think, if the Committee votes not to vote on the matter tonight, it would be out of a desire not to stand up and be counted. We have already voted and the question will only come up on rescinding the vote we have already taken in favor of the project. If the Committee decides to vote on the question tonight, we will vote. I think the members should decide that.

Dr. Lyons: I feel this Committee should go on record tonight one way or the other. I think the circumstances are peculiar.

Chairman: Dr. Lyons, you can offer a motion to that effect at the appropriate time. May I join with you, Mr. Green, in commiserating on the absence of Mr. Goodwin. My sympathy is tempered by the knowledge that at a very early opportunity, when he comes in for an extra appropriation, you may take advantage of the opportunity you missed tonight.

Mr. Green: I promise you we will give him the proper medical treatment.

Mrs. Pigeon: Mr. Chairman, may I ask the honorable gentleman a question. I would like to ask if the Councillor voted to give Mr. Goodwin the appropriation to conduct his survey.

Mr. Green: I might say, Mrs. Pigeon, it was a unanimous vote of the Committee on Appropriations, and had to do with the budget. That extra item was included. There was a request from the Chairman of the Committee. It was passed unanimously. At that time, I don't think the members thought it was to investigate this body or any other body.

Chairman: We wish they would. They investigate and rush to the press on the same day.

Mr. Green: We thought that was some extra money he needed to carry on his department, just like every other department comes in every year and asks for a little more money. We voted that extra money.

Chairman: Mr. Goodwin did not tell the gentlemen the specific purpose for which he desired this appropriation?

Mr. Green: I never heard it.

Chairman: You didn't know he was going to employ gentlemen who had no connection with our school system?

Mr. Green: No.

Mr. Reilly: Will you give us the approximate estimate of the number of vacant seats now in Charlestown?

Mr. Green: Mr. Sullivan says 1033.

Mr. Reilly: That is according to the educational standard of 35 per classroom?

Mr. Green: Yes. I think the schools are pretty well up to capacity.

Chairman: I think, Mr. Councillor, you might suggest when Mr. Goodwin appears again before your Body, in the event of any body of citizens of Boston asking us for a public hearing on a subject matter brought up by Mr. Goodwin, on which we, having granted a public hearing, and notified him, that it is his duty to come and tell his side of the story. At least, he should accord that courtesy to that group of citizens. It seems to me he should come before us and give us in public his side of the story.

Mr. Green: All right, Mr. Chairman, I will. I thank you.

Mr. Sullivan: It is very interesting in looking over the dates of construction of the Charlestown school buildings to note that the last grammar school was constructed in 1892, and there has not been one since. I think that is a disgraceful situation that has been brought upon the people of the Charlestown district—such a situation as that—1892! Just listen to this. The Harvard School is now being used. That was constructed in 1871. The Frothingham School, still in use, was constructed in 1874. The Frothingham Annex, still in use, constructed in 1898. The Samuel Dexter School, still in use, constructed in 1800 and remodelled in 1872. The Chapin School, constructed in 1847. The William H. Kent School, constructed in 1895. The Prescott School, constructed in 1857. The Prescott Annex, constructed in 1896. The James A. MacDonald School, constructed in 1911. The Abram E. Cutter School, constructed in 1886. The Warren School, which I had the privilege of attending, was constructed in 1867. The Copley School, constructed in 1901. The Holden School constructed in 1910. The Charles E. Daniels School, 1847, The Bunker Hill School, constructed in 1866. The Thomas Starr King School, constructed in 1845, and the B. F. Tweed School, constructed in 1892.

I think that is, Mr. Chairman, a disgraceful situation. I think it is a proper insult to the people of the Charlestown District, and I am surprised looking around the various sections of the city where new schools and new playgrounds have been erected, then going back to Charlestown, to see the dates of construction of the schools of Charlestown.

Mr. Green: May I ask one more question?

Chairman: I assume you were going ask Mr. Goodwin these questions, were he here?

Mr. Green: Yes.

Chairman: I will try to represent him as best I can.

Mr. Green: I was going to ask if you intend to tear down the Charles E. Daniels School under the 10-year program.

Chairman: I cannot answer your question specifically. I will say this,—that the construction of a new intermediate school will enable us to abandon many of these old buildings which Representative Sullivan has recited a moment ago.

Mr. Green: Just one more question. Fifty thousand dollars has been appropriated by the School Committee to provide for plans for a new intermediate school in Charlestown?

Chairman: Correct.

Mr. Sullivan: I believe there are several ladies who would like to be heard. Mrs. Teaffe.

Mrs. Teaffe: Mr. Chairman, and Members of the Committee: It seems to me Mr. O'Hare has covered the situation from about every standpoint. He has covered it as a former member of the School Board, as a lifelong resident of Charlestown, and as the father of children.

I would like to say this: When you are building a new building, I do hope you will not build it as the Charlestown High School is built, with no space in front. I hope we shall not step from the last step of the school to the sidewalk. The High School is very beautiful, but there is no approach. I hope when you build the new building—and of course you will—it will have a suitable approach.

Charlestown was adopted by Boston some fifty years ago, and since our adoption we have been given three schools. We handed you all the schools we now use with those exceptions, when you took us over as a daughter; and I know that you have not treated us as a daughter, perhaps as a step-daughter.

All the schools we have, except one or two, and the replacing of the old high school, we gave you fifty years ago; and we are going to expect you to give us something pretty nice when you give us this new intermediate school.

Chairman: Thank you, Mrs. Teaffe.

Mrs. Louise Devereaux: Mr. Chairman, I think on account of the condition of the Charlestown schools, we are doing an injustice to the children if we don't fight to a finish for this new intermediate school.

Chairman: It is pretty hard to fight when the other fellow does not show up.

Mrs. Devereaux: We can find him. We will look for him.

Chairman: Thank you, Mrs. Devereaux. Are there any other proponents?

Mr. O'Hare: Mr. Chairman, there is one fact that slipped my mind. As far as the political end goes, please remember that your Board of Superintendents and your Board of Apportionment have no political obligations in Charlestown. None live there, and those whom you have chosen as your guides in matters of this kind consistently have said yes on this project. I think that is a very important fact. As to the Committee, you folks know how much time you have given to the question. An unpaid Board always has a lot of hard work. I know, and you know. Your Advisory Boards have said yes consistently. I think the situation is without any political aspect whatever. The Charlestown people want the school for their children, and the Board of Superintendents and the Board of Apportionment have said yes. I don't think you need go farther than that. I think that record will stand up. They have said yes.

Mr. Chairman: Thank you, Mr. O'Hare. Is there anybody else, Representative, that has asked to be heard?

Mr. Sullivan: Not that I know of, unless some of the gentlemen sitting in the back care to be heard.

Dr. Lyons: Mr. Chairman, I move now that we take a vote on the question.

Mr. Gray: I second that motion.

Chairman: It has been moved by Dr. Lyons and seconded by Mr. Gray that the Committee now proceed to vote on the question of whether we shall include an appropriation for the new Charlestown intermediate school in the construction program for the current year. The secretary will call the roll. Each member as he votes will, if he chooses, express the reasons which have guided him in reaching his decision.

Mr. Gray: Mr. Chairman, I seconded Doctor Lyons' motion, and would have moved the same myself, if he had not, because I don't want to have you earnest people from Charlestown leave this hall tonight under any misapprehension as to how I stand; although I recognize that my vote will not meet with your wishes.

As far back as June 3, 1929, which was before Mr. Goodwin was Chairman of the Finance Commission, and certainly before he brought this matter up, the question was very thoroughly discussed by the Committee in a public meeting. At that time, I made the following statement, which I shall read. I regret to say despite the very arresting and persuasive reasons of the speakers tonight I do not feel that I can change my views. It is necessary in trying to administer the school system to take into consideration all parts of the city, and I will now read that statement, which was made on June 3, 1929:

"I do not understand that the buildings are in any way dangerous but are merely those which within the ten-year period are on the list of the Schoolhouse Commission for replacement. I hope that Charlestown before that time will have an intermediate school, but in the meantime with so much overcrowding elsewhere, I am compelled to the opinion that with the school population in Charlestown barely increasing, and an admittedly large number of available or empty rooms, or empty seats, we should not go forward on this proposition, despite the very sincere and earnest appeal of the citizens who came here and their very sincere and earnest arguments. I therefore vote in the negative."

I therefore vote in the negative. I should like to point out this fact—by building an intermediate school you are taking a small number of children from each of several buildings into another building. Your assembly hall in the old buildings will presumably still be on the top floor. Your old wooden buildings will still remain. By taking 50 or 100 from each building, you are not relieving the situation as I know you all wish to have it relieved. I can only repeat that I hope within a reasonable period Charlestown will have an intermediate school, but with overcrowding elsewhere, and empty seats in Charlestown, I cannot vote for this appropriation. I am very glad indeed to vote tonight, although I realize it is not what you want, I want all of you to know where I stand.

Dr. Lyons: My stand, Mr. Chairman, is as it was when this question arose before. As Mr. Gray well says, long before the present Finance Commission and Mr. Goodwin became interested, we had gone into the situation. My argument on the statement made at that time that if this project went through we would be faced with the conditions of seven or eight hundred vacant seats—my argument then was that I wished it were 15 or 17 hundred vacant seats.

As it has been pointed out and stated by almost all representatives from Charlestown, the situation is a disgrace to this city.

I don't care about overcrowding in other parts of the city. That matter is not before me at the present time. The only matter before me is the Charlestown intermediate school.

I went over there yesterday afternoon and went through the district, and spent two hours there. I came away with a feeling that it was a disgrace that the city of Boston should have permitted all these years such conditions to exist.

Even though the buildings are structurally safe—that is no argument. There are a great many houses structurally safe in which I would not want to have my family live.

Referring to the structural stability of the buildings, I wish to say, as I said about the Girls' High School, I'd rather have a daughter of mine in a portable than in the present buildings in Charlestown. My vote is Yes. I take great pleasure in voting tonight, hoping to get this situation cleaned up one way or the other.

I am hoping for a successful passing of this order, for I think the people of Charlestown and their children are entitled to this consideration. There are the same dear children in Charlestown as in the Back Bay, in Roslindale, in West Roxbury or Jamaica Plain. I think they are deserving of this new school. I believe that after all these years consideration should be given them, so my vote is being cast for the project. That is one reason. A second is a sense of resentment at the interference on the part of the Chairman of the Finance Commission in this question.

Here a short time ago, a year ago, Mr. Goodwin called me to his office one day—I believe the Chairman was there—

Chairman: We both went, Doctor.

Dr. Lyons: He asked if I would rescind my vote on the Charlestown intermediate school, and I told him No. I told him I thought the conditions there required this school. He said,—"Doctor Lyons, after all, you are a member of the Boston School Committee. That is your business and not mine." And I maintain that the same conditions exist today. It is the business of this Boston School Committee and no one else, and therefore I take great pleasure in voting yes.

Mrs. Pigeon: Aside from the physical conditions of the school buildings in Charlestown, I am prompted to vote on this question because I feel that since the School Committee established a system of 6-3-3 throughout the city of Boston, we should not discriminate in the working out of that system in any particular district. In Charlestown I find that there is no complete, compact intermediate organization.

I think it is due that district, as it is other districts of our city, that the children of Charlestown have this opportunity.

I think it is unfortunate for any speaker to compare the buildings in East Boston with Charlestown, because the school population in the districts is so different. In East Boston, we have a school population of 11,860, while in Charlestown you have 3,338, according to the last records I received from the Secretary's office. I just interject that as an explanatory word. I vote Yes, Madam Secretary.

Mr. Reilly: This is the first time this question has been presented to me. I can only act according to the information that I have received since I have been a member of the School Committee. The Legislature has given us extra money this year to build schools wherever they are most needed. Accordingly, we should do so—not in some sections, but in all wherever they are most needed, whether they be elementary schools or intermediate. Old buildings and portables should be eliminated as quickly as possible—whether an old building or a portable is a greater evil is a matter of personal opinion—Charlestown is filled with old buildings and has no junior high school.

The school in question was incorporated in a program previously approved, and no arguments have been advanced to cause me to overturn a decision made by a previous school committee, a committee of intelligent, earnest and sincere members who gave to this proposition more than ordinary consideration. I vote Yes.

Chairman: I voted Yes before, and I see nothing to change my mind. Mr. Goodwin has not come here to help change my mind, if he could. I am voting yes.

I want to contrast Mr. Gray's attitude, who comes here, and in spite of the fact that everybody here, except himself is in favor, seconds a motion to vote publicly tonight on this question, with that of the Chairman of the Finance Commission.

The Chairman stated that Dr. Lyons' motion passed by the following vote: Yeas—Messrs. Hurley, Lyons, Mrs. Pigeon, Mr. Reilly—4. Nays—Mr. Gray—1.

Mr. James H. Brennan: I simply want to be recorded in favor of the Charlestown school. I understand the vote has already been taken. I congratulate the Committee on its discrimination and fair play towards our district. We have been discriminated against for 25 years, not only on school appropriations but on appropriations of all kinds. Your Committee has shown a spirit of fairness in giving this hearing. We are entitled to a school. I went over the records and find one of our buildings was constructed in 1800, 25 years after the Revolution. The sons and daughters of the Revolution attended that school, and it is still in use.

Chairman: Mr. Brennan's appearance serves to remind me of the fact that Senator John T. Buckley called me about two hours ago and stated that through a combination of unforeseen circumstances he could not come. He wished to be recorded in favor of the construction of the school.

The Committee adjourned.

Secretary.

Mayor Curley, on July 29, received from the Hon. P. Margotti, Royal Italian Consul General, the following communication:

I am instructed by the Royal Government to express to your Honor the hearty thanks of his Majesty the King, my beloved sovereign, and of his excellency the Chief of the Government, Benito Mussolini, for the telegrams by which you have expressed yours and the sympathy of the City of Boston on the occasion of the recent earthquake.

Very deep appreciation is also felt for the very kind and generous offer of assistance, notwithstanding the fact that the Royal Government has declined with extreme gratefulness all offers to send relief to the stricken population, the Fascisti Government having already taken all necessary measures to this effect.

EXTENSION OF CONTRACTS.FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Thomas O'Connor & Co., Incorporated, have been granted an extension of time for the performance of the contract for erecting and completing Fire Department building at Cambridge and Bulfinch streets to November 1. While the contract was signed on October 17, 1929, the Building Department did not issue a permit until December 17, 1929, thereby causing a loss of two months. The changing of the Bulfinch street elevation from brick to stone caused the loss of considerable time in getting the details ready and procuring the material from the West. The change in the heating system from coal-burning to oil-burning equipment also caused a delay.

PARK DEPARTMENT.

R. A. Bossi Company have been granted an extension of time until August 18, 1930, for the completion of the contract for Locker Building at John A. Doherty Playground, Park street and Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

Joseph P. McCabe, Incorporated, have been granted an extension of time until September 1, 1930, for the completion of the contract for surfacing roads, parking spaces, etc., at the Boston Airport, East Boston.

John B. Dolan has been granted an extension of time until July 25, 1930, from July 11, 1930, for the completion of the contract for brick garage at Franklin Park Yard, West Roxbury.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT.

V. Barletta Company have been granted an extension of the time of completion of the contract for building Savin Hill bay sewerage works, Section 1, in private land, between Auckland street and existing culvert under the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, Dorchester, from July 1, 1930, to September 1, 1930. This extension is in addition to two previous extensions, making a total of 143 days.

MAYOR CURLEY URGES SPEEDY ACTION TO SAVE COSTS FOR TRAFFIC RELIEF AT CHARLES AND CAMBRIDGE STREETS.

Mayor Curley, on July 25, directed the following communication to Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Transit Department of the City of Boston:

MY DEAR MR. SULLIVAN,—At the hearing held by the Public Utilities Commission on Thursday, July 24, the press reported that the Boston Elevated Trustees and the Board of Directors of the Boston Elevated Street Railway System are favorable to the location of an elevated station within the circle to be created at Charles and Cambridge streets.

The circle in question will be 240 feet in diameter. The widened Charles street from Cambridge street to Leverett street will have a width of 120 feet and if this improvement, so necessary to the convenience and safety of many thousands of people who apply daily for treatment at the Massachusetts General Hospital and the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary, is ever to be installed at a minimum of cost, the time is now. This is not the time for quibbling upon an expenditure of $20,000 for an underpass when the city is committed to an expenditure in excess of one million dollars for relief of traffic and the improvement of Charles street.

This particular project was advocated by me in 1924 and at that time objection was raised on the score of cost. The cost at the present time, due to the improvement the city is making in this particular section, represents a tremendous reduction over the amount deemed necessary in 1924. The public have waited a sufficient length of time and there is no justification for further delay and I would appreciate your conferring with the other parties at interest and urge them to join with the city in demanding that this improvement be made now.

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

MAYOR CURLEY RECEIVES CONTRIBUTION TO DEFRAY EXPENSES OF WIFE OF LORD MAYOR OF BOSTON, ENGLAND, TO VISIT WITH HUSBAND.

Mayor Curley on July 25 received the following communication from Mrs. Robert F. Herrick:

DEAR MR. MAYOR,—My attention has been called to the visit to Boston of his Worship, Reuben Salter, Lord Mayor of Boston, England, during the week of September 14, 1930.

It appears that Mrs. Salter desires to accompany her husband but certain obstacles may prevent her coming.

I assume that the actual reason is financial in its character, and in order that this good little woman from overseas may share in the distinguished honor to be shown her husband by the City of Boston, I am very pleased to inclose my check in the amount of $500 to aid in defraying the expenses of Mrs. Salter's visit.

It seems highly fitting and appropriate that we should entertain both Lord Mayor Salter and his good wife, and I am very pleased to be included as one of those who can forward a mite to make possible the presence of the wife of the Lord Mayor.

With many assurances of esteem,

Sincerely yours,

MRS. ROBERT F. HERRICK.

URGES DOUBLE SHIFT FOR POST OFFICE WORK TO RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT.

His Honor on July 24 forwarded the following communication to the firm of Merritt, Chapman and Scott, contractors on new post office:

GENTLEMEN,—In connection with the construction of the post office building at Boston I beg you will consider the advisability, as a means of relieving unemployment, of conducting the construction of the new post office building on a two-platoon system.

We have adopted this method in connection with the building of our Governor square rapid transit extension and our engineers estimate that it will be possible to do the work in one half the time that ordinarily would be required; that a considerable saving can be effected and, in addition, twice the number of persons placed at work.

There is every indication that the industrial depression that has been one of the distressing problems of America during the past year is approaching solution and that it will cease to be a problem before winter sets in. We can all aid in a speedy solution if we adopt a double-up policy on construction work and I sincerely trust that the proposition to do so will appeal to your concern.

Very truly yours,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

AIRPORTS IN THE UNITED STATES.

The number of airports in the country continues to grow steadily, and the listing compiled by the Department of Commerce showed 1,520 airports in operation on October 2 of this year. Of these, 442 were municipal airports, and 468 were privately owned and operated. The rest included army fields, naval air stations, Department of Commerce intermediate fields, marked auxiliary fields and miscellaneous others. As will be noted, the municipal airports comprise 29 per cent of the total number now in use in the country. The fact that 442 cities of various sizes have indicated their interest by investing substantial funds in the purchase of property and construction of these airports illustrates the stability of aviation today. As indicative of the volume of traffic already in evidence at municipal airports, it might be noted that in a recent representative week the Des Moines airport showed 88 airplanes arriving and 86 leaving. Oakland, California, showed 55 arriving, 52 leaving; while the Tulsa, Oklahoma, airport showed 272 arriving and 265 leaving. These figures are constantly increasing, and they show that the city airport is already being used.

PORT OF BOSTON.

Boston Harbor comprises an area of about 47 square miles (exclusive of the islands), including all the expanse of tidewater within a straight line from Point Allerton to Point Shirley and extending therefrom to the mainland. It is the best of natural harbors, near open sea, sheltered and spacious for anchorage; main ship channel 35 feet in depth at mean low water, increasing to 40 feet from President Roads to open sea; new dredging operations in charge of United States engineers are under way for increasing depth of said main channel to 40 feet; waterfront (i. e., lineal pier space) 40 miles, 6 miles fronting on 30 feet depth at low water.

Commonwealth Pier No. 5, South Boston, 1,200 feet long, 400 feet wide, accommodating five 600-foot ships at one time, 40 feet depth at mean low water on both sides, with three 2-story fireproof buildings of steel and concrete construction, containing 900,000 square feet of floor space, total cost of this enterprise to State, $4,500,000. Commonwealth Pier No. 6, South Boston (Fish Pier), buildings on same erected by lessee, Boston Fish Market Corporation, cost to State, $1,487,361. Commonwealth Pier, No. 1, East Boston, 900 feet long, costing State $764,600 for site and $426,674 for construction. New dry dock at South Boston (probably the largest in world), completed in 1919, 1,200 feet long and 120 wide, costing $3,169,651 and taken by United States Government at total cost.

Islands in Boston Harbor over 3 acres in area, 17, with total area of 965 acres; Long Island the largest, or 215.5 acres Owned by United States, 392 acres; by City of Boston, 334 acres. Number of wharves, 143, of which eight are owned by the city.

There are 38 foreign steamship lines with regular sailings to and from Boston, ten coastwise lines and three intercoastal. In 1915 a revision of the harbor lines was made and the project undertaken whereby 600 acres of flats between Governor's Island and Jeffries Pt. will be filled in and used for extensive commercial developments under State control. About 175 acres of flats have recently been filled in and added to the land area of East Boston and 160 acres to that of South Boston.

In April, 1918, the Government decided to establish its Army Supply Base on a portion of the Commonwealth lands in South Boston. About 57.6 acres were purchased of the State, the price being $1,317,510, soon followed by the construction of two pier sheds, each 920 feet long, a wharf shed and other buildings, including one of the largest storehouses in the world, built of reinforced concrete, eight stories high, 1,638 feet long, 126 feet wide and with floor space of over 1,650,000 square feet. The total outlay for the plant was $26,000,000.

Total expenditure by State for improvement of Boston Harbor $22,575,827 from 1859 to November 30, 1927, inclusive; in the same period, there was expended additionally $951,992 on small channels; total Federal expenditure from 1790 to June 30, 1927, $13,258,846.

FLAG DAYS.

By order of the City Council it is the duty of the City Messenger to have the national colors displayed upon the public flagstuffs on the following days:

Franklin's Birthday, January 17; Lincoln's Birthday, February 12; Washington's Birthday, February 22; Evacuation Day, March 17; Patriot's Day, April 19; Grant's Birthday, April 27; Memorial Day, May 30; Anniversary of Adoption of National Colors, June 14; Bunker Hill Day, June 17; Independence Day, July 4; Labor Day, September (first Monday); Anniversary of Foudning of Boston, September 17; Columbus Day, October 12; Armistice Day, November 11.

THE COST OF DIPHTHERIA.

Diphtheria costs New York City over $5,000,000 annually, according to Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner of New York, whose statement, given in a news release from the department, is based on the calculations of the value of the lives lost, the cost of hospital care, and the expense of caring for patients in their homes.

Last year the loss occasioned by diphtheria in New York City was as follows:

Value of 642 human lives lost.....	$4,575,000
Cost of hospital care for 2,976 cases in the Contagious Disease Hospitals.....	391,000
Cost of caring for 7,800 cases in private homes.....	273,000
	$5,139,000

As against an annual economic loss of over $5,000,000 a year it is stated that an expenditure of less than 10 per cent of this sum will suffice to wipe out diphtheria and thus save the community $4,500,000 annually.

Figures by the New York City Department of Health show that thus far this year over 25,000 children have been immunized against diphtheria, nearly 12,000 having been protected by private physicians. The growing interest on the part of parents is well shown in the steady increase in the number of children immunized, which increased from 555 in the first week of the present campaign to 4,702 during the first week in April, or almost ninefold.

MUNICIPALITY TAKES OVER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AIRPORT.

Oklahoma City has voted $425,000 in bonds for the enlargement and improvement of its municipal airport. The Aviation Committee of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce has operated the airport for the past four years and was largely instrumental in putting over the bond-issue campaign. The port will in the future be operated by the city as a strictly municipal project.

When completed, the new field will comprise 360 acres and will meet all of the qualifications for an A 1A airport as set forth by the United States Department of Commerce.

TRAFFIC SIGNALS REDUCE BALTIMORE TRAFFIC TOLL.

An analysis of traffic accidents at street intersections in Baltimore indicates that the automatic traffic signal is proving very effective in reducing the number of such accidents.

There were 419 traffic accidents at all intersections covered in the report issued by the Baltimore Safety Council for the first six months of 1927, before the signals were installed. In direct contrast, only 259 such accidents were recorded for the first six months of this year, with the signals in operation.

The casualties were: one person killed and 129 injured before the installation of the signals, as compared with two killed but only 92 injured after. A reduction in the number of accidents was reported at thirty-two intersections, following the installation of the signals, while seventeen other intersections have shown little or no change as yet, and ten actually have experienced an increase since the use of the signals.

THROUGH TRAFFIC STREETS.

Many a city government, confronted almost unawares by the ever-increasing traffic problem, has seized upon the "through street" idea as the least expensive sop to those who clamor for something to relieve the distress. This situation is reflected in many city traffic ordinances which give absolute right-of-way to vehicles on any of the "arterial highways" included in a long list, and which fail entirely to provide for stop requirements, signs, enforcement facilities, or public education. Unfortunately, traffic regulation is not so simple. It cannot be successfully accomplished by merely designating certain through streets.

Still, through streets are useful. Their successful application depends only on an understanding of what can and what cannot be expected of them, and on a realization of where they fit into the traffic control picture. Consider a street as it develops with the increasing traffic from a minor highway to a heavily traveled main thoroughfare. Traffic control will logically develop in successive steps something like these:

1. No control at all.
2. Slow or stop signs at isolated intersections.
3. Through streets with stop signs at every intersection.
4. Occasional automatic signals introduced where there is heavy cross traffic.
5. Complete flexible progressive signal control.
6. Grade separation at important intersecting streets.
7. Elevated or depressed roadway without intersecting streets.

No. 32

MAYOR CURLEY URGES HALTING OF INDUSTRIAL DEPRESSIONS AS A MEANS OF CHECKING CRIME WAVES, POVERTY AND IGNORANCE — DELIVERS ADDRESS BEFORE THE CONVENTION OF THE STATE FEDERATION OF LABOR, DURING SESSION, WHERE HE CALLS PUBLIC ATTENTION TO THIS MOST PRESSING ECONOMIC PROBLEM.

Mayor Curley was the chief speaker at the session of the American Federation of Labor, State Branch, on Tuesday morning, August 5, where he spoke as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The City of Boston has been retarded for some years in the matter of holding major conventions, and this year, with a view to changing conditions, I presented a bill to the Legislature asking authority to expend one one-hundredth of one per cent of the total valuation of the city for the entertainment of distinguished visitors and for the assisting of conventions.

I had a twofold purpose in mind; I realized, of course, the importance and necessity of assisting the various business interests that suffer during the summer season and in addition the possibilities of taking advantage of things that are distinctively "Boston" and that serve as an attraction to the people of the entire world over because, after all, we occupy a rather unique position in that Boston is perhaps the most interesting city from the standpoint of historical treasures of any city in America and to the present time we have failed to capitalize them.

Hotel Accommodations.

The chief barrier, or obstacle, has been the lack of adequate hotel accommodations and proper halls for the holding of conventions. We overcame this obstacle some years ago through the building of the Statler Hotel, the remodeling of the Parker House and also the erection of this building where we are now assembled, so that today Boston is in a position to entertain and provide for the requirements of any character of major convention that may see fit to convene within the limits of the city.

This is the Tercentenary year in the history of New England and it marks the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colony and the beginning of the movement whose ultimate fruition was the liberty of the American people. It seems but fitting under these conditions that that great body of Americans through whose courage, determination, vision and intelligence it was possible to win the World War, the American Legion, be invited to convene in Boston, and, since they were meeting here, it seemed proper that another organization almost equal in importance, in so far as its benefits apply to the individual citizen and to the action, might also convene here, and so an invitation was extended to the American Federation of Labor to be the guests of the City of Boston in the same year that the American Legion was to assemble.

Now, personally, I have rather peculiar views with reference to the place which organized labor occupies in the life of America. I had occasion three years ago to attend a meeting of the Kiwanis Clubs of New England, called in the interests of national defence, at which were present representatives of the army and the navy, who were there to discuss questions of defence. I was the last speaker and I spoke on the question of economic defence, pointing out that economic defence was more essential to the American Republic than were the army and the navy. I do not change on this position.

Tragedy in Letter.

As a rule I am rarely permitted to see any letters that come to me. However, I received one at my home today and I will read it. This is what it said: "Hon. Mayor, Dear Sir: I am writing to you to see if you could do something for my husband and boys in the line of work. The one boy is a printer by trade but will take anything he can get. My husband can do anything in the building line. He was foreman for ——. The bank that holds the mortgage on the house we live in have told us to give up the property and vacate as quickly as possible. We have not been able to keep up the payments on the house because of no work and sickness. We have fifteen children, ten boys and five girls. The oldest boy is married but cannot help us any as he is not working either. Any kind of work you can get for my husband will be greatly appreciated. I am sending this letter to your house as I know you will get it then. Hoping to hear from you, I remain."

Now this letter represents one of the tragedies that today obtain in the richest country, if you will, in the whole world. I presume that this could be repeated a hundred thousand times, or five hundred thousand times, not in the size of the family, but in the case of families in similar condition where the head of the household, or any member of the household, has found it impossible to procure employment and where he has been unable to pay his taxes or assessments or charges at the bank, and where the bank is about to take away the fruit of his toil of a lifetime because of the industrial depression for which the worker is not responsible and to prevent which neither the politician, the preacher, the educator or economist has done a single worth-while thing. (Continued on page 1095.)

MAYOR CURLEY'S ADDRESS.

INDUSTRIAL DEPRESSION PERIODS.

Lloyd George once said that in Great Britain they have an industrial depression once in every two and one half years. That was before the World War. They have had a continuous depression since 1920 in Great Britain. In America there is an industrial depression once in every seven years. It is a most unusual situation. Money is loaned by the banks for stock market purposes at from two to two and one half per cent. The City of Boston borrowed within the last week three millions of dollars for various municipal purposes and we borrowed it at the lowest rate for the past twenty years, at two and five-tenths per cent. Yesterday I purchased for the city fifty-two hundred barrels of flour, for the use of the various city departments, at a price of $5.05 per barrel, the lowest price in seventeen years.

Abraham Lincoln once said, "No nation can exist half slave and half free," and he was right. The agricultural element of the American population represent about one in every four of the American population and allied or dependent upon them is a number almost equally as great, so that when one half of the American people are troubled, or for nearly two years in the shadow of bankruptcy, as the agricultural element has been in America, it is an impossibility for the other half to be prosperous. Something must be done regarding the condition of the farm element in America.

I may have occasion to call on this organization for their aid in the enactment of national legislation that may perhaps relieve the situation, because until we secure some measure of relief there can be no general prosperity in the country. Letters like this one I have just read will pour in constantly from men and women living in accordance with the ten commandments and raising such large families. Here we have a father and mother about to lose their home because it is an impossibility for the adult members of the family to secure employment.

AMERICA'S MOST DANGEROUS DISEASE.

We have in America today the most dangerous disease in the whole world; it is the "psychology of fear." We are living in a state of dread. Some large department store in Boston, Cambridge, New York or Philadelphia, some railroad company, some steamship company, will discharge say five per cent of their employees. While five per cent of three thousand persons is but one hundred and fifty men and women discharged the real injury is not that which comes from cutting off the income of the five per cent, it is the psychological effect which it produces on those who are still working. The 2,850 who are still working and who are fearful that their turn may come next, because of this fear, start to husband their income and resources, thereby bringing injury to every industry in the entire land.

We talk of reprisal. Personally, I would like to see some form of reprisal. We are going to have a parade on Boston Day. I would like to see every store in Boston represented in that parade, and also every large institution that employs men and women. In that parade I would like to see some store carry a banner reading, "We have not discharged a single man or woman in our employ, nor have we reduced the wages of any."

If any store could carry such a banner, in my opinion they would do more business in the next ten years than it would be possible for them to handle.

The worker is not responsible for the industrial depression; he is a victim of it and should not be required to shoulder the entire burden of it. The employer should be required to shoulder his part of the responsibility. When the day of adversity and depression comes it is far better to reduce the dividend rate and allow the worker to continue in employment.

I do not know how long this condition will continue in America but it is the most important proposition today confronting the American people. It will make and unmake in the United States in the next three years presidents, senators, governors, all down the line. This is a proposition that demands solution. It is just as important in its relation to every American as was the question of chattel slavery in 1861, and prior to 1861.

The Constitution, the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights guarantee to every citizen in America the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It also guarantees to them equality of opportunity. There can be no equality of opportunity so long as God-fearing, right-thinking, right-living, American fathers and mothers find it impossible to secure the necessary labor to secure the money for the maintenance of their little flocks.

It is about time the professors, preachers, educators, as well as the politicians, gave attention to this, the most important question confronting the American people.

Crime waves result from the ferocity of the struggle for existence, the inability of the individual to provide for the needs of his family so that he resorts to lex talionis. This has been the rule from the beginning of time in the majority of cases and will continue to be. If we want to be free of crime waves, reduce poverty, abolish ignorance, in God's name let us give a little thought to this economic question which must be rightly solved if America is to continue in existence.

CHANGES IN CONTRACT.

HOSPITAL DEPARTMENT.

Matthew Cummings Company have been ordered to make the following changes in the contract for constructing the Administration Building. Repair an old 18-inch brick sewer, which did not show on any plan now existing, either at the hospital or the Sewer Department, from Wards F, G and H, B, C and D, and the present Administration Building.

To run a 12-inch sewer from the man-hole in front of the Administration Building to sewer on Harrison avenue according to drawing No. 54 furnished by the architects, James H. Ritchie and Associates, for the sum of $2,330. This is itemized as follows: 400 cubic yards excavation at unit price of $2.50 a cubic yard, $1,000; 380 cubic yards backfill at unit price of $1 a cubic yard, $380; 240 lineal feet 12-inch drain, including masonry, labor and material at $1 a foot, $240; permits and bond to City of Boston for repairing street. Cost of street repairing, including concrete base and asphalt top, $350; this cut will average 12 feet and must be shored and braced. Shoring and bracing, including labor and material, $360. Total, $2,330.

DAMAGES ASSESSED.

The Mayor has approved the following votes of the Board of Street Commissioners:

That in the matter of Marion Goldman, petitioner for damages occasioned her estate by the widening and relocation of Walk Hill street, under the order of July 12, 1928, after consultation with the Law Department, and on its advice, the Board assesses the petitioner's damages in the sum of $7,189; and consents that the Corporation Counsel agree to judgment in said case on the terms herein stated.

This settlement covers damages occasioned by said widening and relocation to all properties abutting the northeastern side of said Walk Hill street, between Wellington Hill footway and Harvard street, excepting property located at the corner of Walk Hill and Harvard streets, supposed to belong to, and shown on plan dated December 3, 1927, and on file in the office of this department, under the name of Andrew M. Deane, and excepting three properties supposed to belong to, and shown on said plan, under the name of Joseph V. Cundari.

That the order of the Street Commissioners and Mayor of August 23, 1929, determining that no person sustains damages by the making of the public improvement, consisting of the laying out and construction of Brahms street, West Roxbury district, be, and the same hereby is, amended, by striking out in the first and second lines of said order the words:—"that no person sustains in his estate," and by striking out in the last line of said order the word: "no."

That said order be further amended by adding thereto "William T. Handy, $725."

That the amount $725 be, and the same hereby is, awarded to William T. Handy for the damages sustained by the making of said improvement.

CITY MAY BUILD MINIATURE GOLF COURSE.

Mayor Curley, on August 5, sent the following communication to Chairman Long of the Park Department:

DEAR SIR,—I greatly regret to inform you that the Boston City Council failed to approve of the order drafted for the sale of land at Chestnut Hill avenue and Commonwealth avenue which is no longer required for playground purposes. The action taken by the City Council is most regrettable since the money derived from the sale of this land could be used to advantage for the purchase of additional park or playground sites in other sections of the city where parks and playgrounds are needed.

Under the circumstances I can conceive of no real reason why the city should continue to provide a public park for the occupants of a house adjacent to this particular plot of land.

I respectfully suggest therefore that your Board consider the advisability of advertising the lease of this land for the installation of a private miniature golf course. The revenue received by the city from such a sale could be used to advantage at this time and I accordingly recommend such action.

Very truly yours,
JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ORDERS.*General Order No. 69.I. FIRE DEPARTMENT BAND.

The next rehearsal for the Fire Department Band will be held at the East Armory on East Newton street, between Albany street and Harrison avenue, at 2 p. m., Friday, August 1, 1930. All members of the band will report promptly at that hour in uniform as the official pictures of the band will be taken at that time.

II. RETIREMENT.

The following retirement which took effect at 8 a. m., Saturday, July 26, 1930, is hereby announced:

Hoseman Daniel J. Calden, Maintenance Division.

Hoseman Calden was appointed to this department on September 13, 1888. He leaves the department with the best wishes of his associates.

III. POLL TAX.

The attention of the members of the department is called to the following letter received from his Honor the Mayor:

BOSTON, MASS., July 21, 1930.

To the Heads of City Departments.

GENTLEMEN,—You will please notify all of the male employees in your department that poll tax bills for 1930 have now been issued and should be promptly paid by every male city employee.

An examination of the records in the case of city employees indicates that very few persons in the employ of the city have up to this time paid their poll tax bills and that several owe for one or more prior years.

There is no reason why the poll tax should not be paid by every person legally liable therefor. It represents the minimum requirement in taxation and is too often overlooked because the amount is small.

Prompt payment of a poll tax will strengthen the feeling of responsibility which every citizen should have in his government, and a full collection of poll taxes will greatly relieve the burden resting upon homes and business.

Very truly yours,

JAMES M. CURLEY, Mayor.

IV. COMMENDATION.

Hoseman Leo C. Driscoll of Engine Company 47 is hereby commended for responding to and working at Box 3539, July 22, 1930, while off duty.

By order of Fire Commissioner EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY J. POWER,
Acting Chief of Department.

*General Order No. 70.I. FIRE DEPARTMENT BAND.

The next meeting and rehearsal of the Fire Department Band will be held at the quarters of Engine Company 26, Broadway, at 2 p. m., Friday, August 8. Members are requested to report promptly at that hour. All members should bring their music stands.

II. LIGHT FUEL OIL.

The following notice received from the state fire marshal is published for the information of the department:

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Department of Public Safety.

Amendment to the rules and regulations governing the installation and maintenance of light fuel oil burners, and the keeping and use of oil in buildings in this commonwealth in connection therewith (within the metropolitan district).

In accordance with the provisions of chapter 148 of the General Laws, and amendments thereto, the Department of Public Safety hereby prescribes the following amendment to the Rules and Regulations governing the installation and maintenance of light fuel oil burners, and the keeping and use of oil in buildings in this commonwealth in connection therewith (within the metropolitan district), approved in Council October 31, 1923, effective November 1, 1923, by striking out section 9 of said regulations and by substituting in place thereof the following new section:

Section 9. When light fuel oil is supplied to an oil burner by gravity there shall be an automatic closing safety valve approved by the state fire marshal located in the oil supply tank near the burner and a hand operated shut-off valve at the tank, and the automatic closing safety valve shall be so arranged as to shut off automatically the flow of oil in case of fire at or near the burner. All shut-off valves shall be plainly labelled with a red tag, not less than two inches in width and four inches in length, printed on both sides with the words, "OIL SHUT-OFF."

Respectfully submitted,

JOHN W. RETH,
State Fire Marshal.

Approved.

A. F. FOOTE,
Commissioner of Public Safety.

Approved as to form.

CHARLES F. LOVEJOY,
Assistant Attorney-General.

Approved in Council, July 23, 1930.

WILLIAM L. REED,
Executive Secretary.

By order of Fire Commissioner EDWARD F. McLAUGHLIN.

HENRY J. POWER,
Acting Chief of Department.

WIFE OF MAYOR OF BOSTON,
ENGLAND, NOT TO VISIT WITH DISTINGUISHED HUSBAND BE-CAUSE OF ILL HEALTH.

Mayor Curley, on August 1, received the following communication from the Honorable Reuben Salter, Mayor of Boston, England:

An account of an interview with myself has appeared in your Boston papers, signed by a Frank L. McIlwraith (by the way it was a lady who made the interview), and I write to you to correct a wrong impression given in that article.

It states that the reason why the Mayoress is not to accompany me to Massachusetts is because we cannot afford to pay expenses and that it has already cost me 150 pounds during my mayoralty. (I shall be satisfied if I get off my year of office for double that amount.)

The Mayoress has decided not to go over the water on account of her health, and that alone. She is afraid she would be ill all the journey. If she would go with me, I would gladly pay her expenses, and certainly would not accept such from any one else. My good lady is very much annoyed at the suggestion that we want assistance to come and see you, but really it has tickled me immensely to read of the efforts made to meet the situation.

Anyway I do appreciate the very kind offer made and the generosity shown towards myself and wife in our new found poverty. If the Mayoress will come I will bring her with me to see you all.

There are also several glaring mistakes in that interview, such as that the port of Boston is five miles away from the town. The dock and harbour is all in the Borough boundary, and we made a profit last year on our dock of 12,000 pounds. So we are not such a one-horse show as is made out. But your American interviewers have a well-known reputation, which in this case they are living up to. It is as well sometimes to see ourselves as others see us.

Needless to say my colleagues and I are looking forward to seeing you early in September; we expect to leave here on the 6th, and to bring with us greetings from the old town.

With kind regards,

I am yours sincerely,

R. SALTER,
Mayor of Boston.

ADDITIONS TO CONTRACT.PARK DEPARTMENT.

Joseph P. McCabe, Incorporated, has been ordered to make the following additions to the contract for surfacing roads, parking spaces, etc., at the Boston Airport, East Boston, signed April 18, 1930.

Excavate and grade the hydraulic fill material on the present rough unfinished area south of the existing north and south runway to the bulkhead, also the area west of the west roadway near the radio station. The material is to be excavated so that when completed the surface shall be even and six (6) inches below the proposed finish grades of the areas. MADAME SCHUMANN-HEINK TO BE BOSTON'S GUEST IN SEPTEMBER AT RECEPTION TO ENGLISH MAYOR.

Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, world famous contralto, has accepted the invitation of Mayor Curley to be a guest of honor during the Boston Week ceremonies of the Tercentenary, and to sing at Boston Garden in honor of the Towne Meeting and Reception, to greet His Worship, Lord Mayor Reuben Salter of Boston, England, September 16. And Mayor Curley has shown his pleasure at the courtesy by telegraphing Madame Schumann-Heink his delight.

Madame Schumann-Heink as a courtesy to Mayor Curley and the citizens of Boston will cross the continent from her home in Coronado, Cal., to participate in the ceremonies of the Boston Tercentenary.

In a telegram from Colorado Springs, Colo., Madame Schumann-Heink addresses Mayor Curley as follows:

"I am honored and happy that I can be of service to dear Boston and you, beloved Mayor Curley. I will be ready September fifteenth at my old Brunswick Hotel, awaiting your wishes and commands. I shall sing as never before, proving my love and everlasting gratitude to Boston and you. Devotedly."

Madame Schumann-Heink has for many years been an idol of the music-loving people of the United States by reason of her great ability, as probably the leading contralto of all time, and also by reason of the fact of her wonderful devotion to the disabled soldiers of the World War who fought for the cause of the United States.

During the year 1928 Madame Schumann-Heink gave a warranty deed of her beautiful estate, at San Diego, Cal., having a valuation of $250,000, as a permanent home for the disabled soldiers of the World War.

Madame Schumann-Heink was born at Leiben, a suburb of Prague, then in Austria, and was educated at the Ursuline Convent in her native city. She became the principal contralto of the Court Opera of Dresden at the age of seventeen, singing the role of Azucena in "Il Trovatore." She scored a great triumph at Hamburg in 1883 and later became the leading singer of the Kroll Theatre, Berlin.

Madame Schumann-Heink gained an international reputation as the principal singer of the Wagner Festivals at Bayreuth. Coming to the United States, Madame Schumann-Heink, joined the Metropolitan Opera Company at New York where she became for many years the idol of musical America. She has also attained international fame as a concert singer.

Upon receipt of the diva's telegram of acceptance Mayor Curley wired her as follows:

August 7, 1930.

MADAME ERNESTINE SCHUMANN-HEINK,
800 Orange Avenue, Coronado,
California.

Rejoice in your kind and gracious courtesy to the people of Boston and am deeply appreciative of the personal compliment conveyed in your message. Boston will extend you a welcome unsurpassed in its history. Kindest regards.
